Ike to Outline Plan
For Formosa DefensePresidents to Present Congress With Formosa
Intentions Monday, Asking Full Approval

WASHINGTON (UP)—The White House announced today that President Eisenhower will send Congress a message Monday making clear U.S. defense intentions in the Far East and asking House and Senate approval.

Official sources said previously that the president will draw a defense line in the western Pacific and ask authority to use U.S. air and sea power to defend it if Red China tries to step over.

A tentative draft of the administration's proposed resolution was shown today to key members of Congress. One highly placed source said the proposed U.S. defense zone would include only Formosa and the Pescadore Islands and would not embrace such other Nationalist-held islands as Quemoy and Matsu, which are much closer to the Chinese mainland.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty announced the President's intentions this way:

"The President will submit a special message to Congress on Monday. The message will clarify the purposes and application of United States policy in relation to the security of Formosa and ask for the support thereof by the Congress."

WOMEN THE STRONGER
WEEKEND WRITER FINDS

"Biologically the female is demonstrably the stronger organism," says Dr. Ashley Montagu, anthropology professor at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N.J. And that sets off a really lively debate on the question: "Women are the stronger sex" in Weekend Magazine in this issue. PLANS NOW FIRM

Pat Bay Repair
Plant Assured

Fairey Aviation Company of Canada Ltd. has definitely decided to go ahead with establishment of an aircraft repair unit at Patricia Bay airport which may ultimately develop into a major aircraft plant, the Times learned today.

Negotiations for purchase of a hangar at the airport to serve as the plant have now been completed and the company will take over Feb. 1.

Plans are to start on a small scale and expand later, as the company did in Dartmouth, Nova Scotia.

There it began as a small repair unit and now employs more than 1,000 men. Only Friday the company announced that it is gearing the Dartmouth plant to produce guided missiles.

The Fairey company is a branch of the British firm of the same name, which is already manufacturing guided missiles.

An official announcement of the Patricia Bay plans is expected next week.

Dr. F. T. Fairey, M.P., for Victoria (whose similar name is only a coincidence) has been working closely with the company officials in plans for the Patricia Bay plant.

U.S. CARRIER FORCE HEADED FOR FORMOSA

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—A United States Navy fast carrier task force left Manila Bay early today and was reported—but not confirmed officially—headed toward the troubled Formosan waters which have swirled all week with air and sea action and China's biggest amphibious invasion of the long Civil War.

3 Top Envoys
Called Home
By Russia

LONDON (UP)—Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik left today for Moscow on a summons from the Kremlin to join the other two Big Three envoys in the Russian capital.

Georgi Zarubin, ambassador to Washington, arrived in Paris on his return to the Kremlin and Sergei Vinnogradov, the envoy to Paris, already was in Moscow.

The recall of the Big Three ambassadors to the Soviet foreign office indicated that Russia may open a new diplomatic offensive over Germany or Red China.

Guns Boom at 3 P.M. Tuesday;
Wallace Opens House Last Time

Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace will open the B.C. Legislature Tuesday for the last time.

The Queen's representative in B.C. retires this fall and the 19-gun artillery salute thundering across the Inner Harbor Tuesday will be the last executed in his honor at a House opening.

Although the opening is traditionally "Victoria's show," the Lieutenant-Governor will be accompanied by his four Vancouver aides de camp, who have not

As RCAF Trainer

EDMONTON (CP)—A twin-engine RCAF plane crashed today about 25 miles southwest of Edmonton. An RCAF search and rescue spokesman said three persons were killed.

WINNIPEG (CP)—An RCAF twin-engine Expediter training plane crashed in southern Manitoba early today killing the three crew members aboard.

The pilot was identified as a member of the RCAF but it was not known if the other pair, both navigator trainees, were NATO students or members of the RCAF.

A resident of Carman, Man.—W. B. Mitchell—saw the crash about 4½ miles south of Sanford while he was returning home from work.

Mitchell—phoned suburban Fort Garry RCMP early today and told them of the crash. They in turn told Station Winnipeg.

The plane left Winnipeg at 7:30 Friday on a routine five-hour training flight. It is thought they were returning to their base when the crash occurred 20 miles short of their destination.

Names of the men are being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

TO VISIT CANADA—Clement Attlee, former prime minister of Britain and leader of the Labor party, will visit Canada from April 11 to May 1 to fill a number of speaking engagements, under the sponsorship of the CCF party.

40 Seamen
Poisoned

HALIFAX, N.S. (BUP)—Forty Royal Canadian Navy seamen were in a hospital with alcohol poisoning today after what the navy called "an unfortunate incident" aboard the aircraft carrier Magnificent.

Atlantic command headquarters said 40 patients were in the Stadacona Naval Hospital. Eleven of them were in serious condition and five on the dangerously ill list. Names were being withheld until relatives were notified.

The navy said the men drank a quantity of duplicating machine fluid containing a powerful alcohol Friday. However, the first symptoms of illness did not become apparent until today.

Lion's Gate Purchase
Strengthens Victoria
Claim for B.C. Help

A new move to get provincial government aid in building a new Point Ellice Bridge was forecast today following government purchase of the Lions Gate span at Vancouver.

City council acting finance chairman, Ald. Brent Murdoch said the question will be brought before council.

Through the deal announced Friday by Premier Bennett the general taxpayers of British Columbia will help subsidize the purchase of the Lions Gate toll bridge so that eventually it will be a toll-free bridge.

While the Point Ellice span is not a toll bridge, the principle of assistance from the general provincial treasury is the same, it is argued.

VICTORIANS HELPING
Under regulation of the Toll Highway and Bridges Authority, (1933), the government is empowered to subsidize the bridge purchase by half the cost. It pays 2½ per cent of the capital indebtedness each year. Bridge operation pays the other 2½ per cent of the annual mortgage reduction, (usually 5 per cent of the whole) annually.

This means Victorians, and all other B.C. taxpayers are helping to buy the bridge.

Ald. Murdoch estimated that a new Point Ellice Bridge would cost roughly $400,000. City has $191,000 saved as a bridge fund from land sales.

FUND STARTED
"If we can get the provincial government to help, so much the better," said Alderman Murdoch.

"If it (the proposition) is put on a good, sound financial basis, the provincial government should be approached."

The matter will come up in council after examination by both finance and public works committees.

Ald. Geoff. Edgelow, also a member of the finance committee, said the Lions Gate bridge purchase "... leaves us room for new hope. If they are going into the bridge business, there is no reason why they shouldn't help us."

He added that Victoria is in a good bargaining position because it can put up almost half the cost of the bridge at the start.

There is another parallel between the Lions Gate and Point Ellice bridges.

Both cross harbor waters and both connect separate municipalities. Even though Point Ellice bridge is built entirely on city land, it is a vital link with Esquimalt.

20,000 FLEE
FLOOD WATERS
IN FRANCE

PARIS (UP)—The Seine River rose today toward its highest point in 31 years, forcing an estimated 20,000 persons, including families of U.S. servicemen, out of their homes around Paris.

U.S. soldiers and airmen joined in emergency efforts to bolster dikes and rescue marooned families. The servicemen waded the flood waters up to their chests and towed stranded persons to safety on air force rubber rafts.

Weather Hits
U.K. Soccer
For 2nd Week

LONDON (Reuters)—For the second week in a row, the weather played havoc with the British Saturday soccer program.

Of 62 games scheduled today, 27 were postponed.

Last Saturday snowstorms and ice-coated playing fields forced postponement of 41 games.

But a thaw was to blame for today's chaos. Melting snow left many soccer pitches looking like small lakes.

Sixteen games in England were postponed, 10 were called off in Scotland and one in Ireland.

Wolverhampton Wanderers, the league champions, swept back to the top of the First Division on goal average by beating Charlton, the leading London side, 2-1 after a scoreless first half.

They now have 34 points from 27 games, the same total as Sunderland, who dropped a home point by sharing four goals with Portsmouth.

Manchester United moved into third place with 31 points by drawing 1-1 at home with Bolton. (See scores page 3.)

Writer Says Our Cars Move Like Hearses, People Like Pallbearers

(Ed. Note—Following is the translation of an article by Gerard Filion, editor of Le Devoir, Montreal, based on his recent visit here as a Canadian Club speaker):

By GERARD FILION

Victoria is not the capital of a Canadian province; it is the metropolis of a Commonwealth country. At least, that is the first impression that you have when you arrive in that provincial town, the last refuge, it seems of the "Victorian" middle class. People have the serious expression, the slow step, the accent of the Old Country.

Nothing happens, you would think, in that city, which is nevertheless the capital of a fast-growing province. The advent of an ordinary journalist from Montreal arouses a surprising interest. He is interminably pestered in an attempt to draw from him categorical statements on all the current problems. He makes the headlines in the newspapers and is the star of the radio. The thing is that, really, very little happens in that city of civil servants and retired residents. Just as in any large village, the slightest item of news takes on exaggerated proportions.

The striking feature of Victoria, over and above the beauty and the neatness of the city, is the calm of its citizens and their advanced ages. No one is in a hurry; the cars move like hearses and the people walk like pallbearers. The average age of the inhabitants must be at least 70 years. Victoria is much more a rest home than a city. It is the meeting place of the retired from all over the Empire.

And that is why one feels, in Victoria, as if one was living in another country, a country much closer to London than to Ottawa. British affairs seem to attract just as much attention as do Canadian. Moreover, that frame of mind is common to all of Columbia. With reason the label "British" is coupled with it; it is more so than all the rest of Canada, probably as British as Lancashire or Durham. Not only the chain of the Rocky Mountains separates Columbia from the rest of Canada. The barrier of history is higher than the mountains' crest. Seen from Victoria or Vancouver the rest of Canada seems a far-off land, an immense flat country such as one readily imagines the Russian plain or the Steppes of Siberia. Undoubtedly there are many Canadians living in Columbia, but the foundation of the population is British; the air you breathe carries the label "Made in England," just as do the tweeds everyone wears and the little English cars everyone drives. Even the Canadians, the real Canadians who live in Columbia, are not Canadians like the others; they are Canadians in the British manner, with a slight Oxford accent.

From a Victoria viewpoint, the Province of Quebec appears to be a very strange phenomenon: a little island of French culture pounded by the waves of an Anglo-Saxon ocean. Something like the Island of Sand. There is no prejudice, in Victoria, against the Province of Quebec as the centre of French culture. For that little island is not a presence, merely a point on a map.

As soon as you tackle the question of politics you feel a nervousness, amounting almost to irritation. Besides, you do not tackle the question; you are asked quite bluntly after two words of introduction. Why does the Province of Quebec refuse to sign the fiscal agreements with Ottawa? How do the people of Quebec manage to live under the dictatorship of Duplessis?

And so, one must launch into long explanations: The British North America Act provides for the provinces' imposition of direct taxes for provincial purposes. Who can accuse a province of blocking progress for exercising its constitutional privileges? Quebec asks no favors; all it means to do is to make good its constitutional rights to raise its own taxes up to the amount which the fiscal agreements would bring it. If the other provinces want to go back to the feeding bottle that is their business.

I remember making a trivial comparison between the plump, well-cared-for capon and the farmyard cock: Nine provinces have complacently let themselves be fattened; Quebec finds a greater satisfaction in leading its own cock's life. It is a question of temperament.

I do not imagine such arguments are likely to convince many people.

"We have no objection to your French way-of-life," a kindly grandmother from Victoria confided to me. "We object to your Catholicism. So long as you are led by the curies it will be impossible to get along with you." That rather blunt though sincere confession seems to me to express the essential feature of the attitude of a great number of Anglo-Protestants. Several would be ready, I think, to give "freedom of the city" to French culture throughout Canada on the condition that that culture be lay and free-thinking. But a French civilization which remains genuinely Catholic cannot be accepted. Did I not read in a weekly newspaper published at Red Deer that one of the reasons for which the City of Quebec had delayed so long before erecting a monument to Sir Wilfrid Laurier was that the Canadian statesman had had some run-ins with the clergy in his youth?

Victoria gives th' old sayin' a new twist. It's burnin' behind its bridge.

Drawin' a line fer th' Chinese Communists will likely draw their fire.

Flights t' Europe over th' pole c'd put rail an' boat companies over a barrel.

But for the most part, the French-Canadians remain purely a phenomenon of Quebec. Elsewhere they are on the same footing as the other national minorities. It was repeated to me at least a dozen times. It would be impossible to grant the French-Canadians special favors when there are fewer of them than there are Ukrainians or Germans.

The reply to that argument is that, after all, the French-Canadians have been in Canada for 350 years; that they possess historical and judicial rights; that even if in a certain province they are less numerous than the Germans or the Ukrainians, they do represent 30 per cent of the population of the country. This argument interests several people and must surely convince some of them. But it will take a long time for the English-Canadian population as a whole to admit the fact of a French civilization throughout Canada as a natural state of affairs. So far, it is regarded rather, out of Quebec, as a sort of foreign body, impossible to assimilate, whose presence is disquieting and will perhaps eventually necessitate a surgical intervention.

A double language, a double culture, a double educational program, here is something that appears devilishly complicated and uselessly costly. If the French-Canadians speak their own language in Quebec, that is their concern; if they teach what they wish to teach in their schools that is their affair; but as soon as they leave their province have them fall into place with the rest of Canada! The Poles, the Italians, the Russians, the Germans learn English well enough and are assimilated into the Anglo-Saxon population after two or three generations. Why ever do the French-Canadians persist in their resistance?

This is what seems to me to be the average reaction of the man-in-the-street. In intellectual circles it is different. There is more broad-mindedness, more understanding. I am even inclined to think that many intellectuals of western Canada would be willing to accept French civilization on an equal footing with their own, but they dare not say so too loudly, for fear of being looked on as skanks. It is not that they lack courage, but they feel that it is better to wait for the idea to make its own way, slowly, and with difficulty.

CAPITAL LETTER

Theme for the Opening—
'Did You See That Hat?'

By ART STOTT

THEY'LL OPEN the golden gates on Tuesday, ready for the arrival of His Honor. At the portal and inside the Parliament Buildings will be RCMP officers lending a touch of scarlet to the scene. Outside will be the honor guards.

In the legislative chamber itself the men and women who make British Columbia's laws will sit bunched forward, flanking the Speaker's dais. Crowding the rest of the floor will be rows of seats occupied by honored guests. There will be an air of dignity about them, broken by occasional whisperings as ladies lean to their escorts commenting on the hats and costumes of other ladies with their escorts.

The Press Gallery will be crowded, women's editors and society reporters jammed in with the regular correspondents, commenting, for the record, on hats and costumes.

Guns will boom in the formal salute. Updown, a veteran republican will murmur, as he has murmured for the last 30 years, "Listen! There go my taxes."

His Honor, Lt. Gov. Clarence

Wallace, Victoria's favorite host, will enter with his uniformed aides. They will make their measured progress to the Speaker's dais, poker-faced but highly conscious of hundreds of eyes on their procession.

The Lieutenant-Governor will read the Speech from the Throne and editorial writers will frame their comments:

"More notable, as usual, for what it did not say than what it said."

The formalities will be completed. The procession will withdraw. Newsmen will stumble down the steep stairs and hustle to the reporters' room. The gathering will break up—some visitors going to the chambers of friends who are MLA's, up-country members chatting with colleagues they haven't seen since the last session. And then invited guests will proceed to the premier's reception at the Empress.

Downtown knots of citizens will gather with the weary humor of the years: "Well, I see the gas works is open again."

School Finance Feature

Nobody can know yet what will be the highlight of the session. Indications are that it will centre on the new educational finance legislation. In the middle of that debate will be youthful, earnest and popular Education Minister Ray Williston, the former Prince George school inspector. Mr. Williston has a talent for friendliness. He works hard and he meets people. Parent audiences in this area know him from the functions he has attended. They've laughed at his jokes—he enjoys them as much as anyone—and they know he has a big job ahead of him.

If he carries the ball, the formula may escape a lot of the political animosity it might otherwise expect, on principle, for the opposition.

Sources of Wonder

Between courses there'll be gay and often unconsciously humorous speeches from backbenchers. Wonder what Lydia will produce this year? Wonder if Mr. Gagliardi has some semantic contortions to perform? Wonder if Mr. Bonner will concentrate more on substance than fluency?

Wonder if the CCF's Bob Strachan will strengthen his utterances by making them a little rarer? Wonder how Dr. Larry Giovando will feel as an independent in a House that no longer has official Conservative representation? Wonder if Leo Nimsick will beam like the midday sun as he advances CCF argument under the grave and dignified direction of Mr. Arnold Webster?

Wonder what gaiety Tom Uphill, the veteran, will have to leaven a heavy debate?

Or what the co-ordinated Liberal bloc, the agronomist, the chartered accountant, the two lawyers and the ex-timberman, have up their sleeves?

These things won't be immediately apparent. The early days will be devoted, as they always have been, to the addresses in reply to the Speech from the Throne. Their contents are partially predictable.

They'll include songs of praise for the scenic and other attractions of the member's riding, pleas for roads and possibly more electrical power and, in greater or lesser degree, the party doctrines of the speaker.

So it will go, with a lot of vital legislation left to the exhausting, droning final hours of the session. But on Tuesday the emphasis won't be on such matters. It will be laid on the more spritely topics of ladies' hats, the exchange of greetings, and the traditional forms of legislative opening.

HELPS SHEPPARD—Dr. Paul Kirk, nationally known criminologist, has been hired by the Sheppard family to seek new evidence in Dr. Samuel Sheppard murder case. Kirk said he would investigate the case with an "open mind." — NEA telephoto.

The judge asked why. Vaughn explained he is a lunch wagon cook on the county fair circuit in the summertime and will be out of work until June.

The judge obliged.

FAIR: In Sacramento, Cal., state assemblyman Charles Myers has asked a legislative blow at fly toilets.

IN PARLIAMENT

CCF Members Oppose Pact

(From CP and BUP Dispatches)

The House of Commons, still debating rearming of West Germany under the North Atlantic Alliance, has been asked whether that move is compatible with the United Nations attempts at world disarmament.

Health Minister Martin said Friday the two are part of a single policy of working for peace.

The recent success at the United Nations in reviving disarmament talks, he said, was achieved because the West had become strong.

The Paris agreements, now before the Commons for ratification, would guarantee that strength.

Mr. Martin spoke in reply to Joseph W. Noseworthy (CCF, York South), one of four CCF members who have indicated in the two days of debate that they will vote against ratification.

Danger of War Increased

As long as East and West piled up arms the danger of another war would increase.

"Unless we want a third world war we must find some way of reaching an agreement on an effective disarmament program."

It appeared that we were making some progress. I am most concerned with what effect this ratification will have on our meeting with Russia in a disarmament conference after and not before we have rearmed Germany."

Mr. Martin agreed with Mr. Noseworthy that there has been some easing of world tension. But that was because the West had become stronger.

He referred to the Canadian-sponsored resolution at the United Nations for resuming disarmament talks, adopted while he headed Canada's delegation there last fall.

"My impression is that we were able to arrive at an understanding with the Soviet Union because by this time the masters of the Kremlin had come to the conclusion that they were negotiating with an area of the world that had become strong."

Mr. Knight gave these reasons for his opposition to ratification:

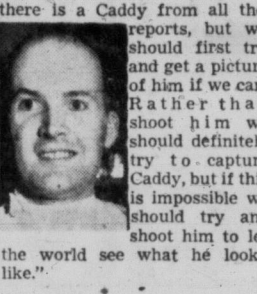

1. German rearmament now would be an irrevocable step in dividing Germany and creating an impassable barrier to reunification.
2. Rearmament would be more a warlike than a peaceful gesture.
3. The world needed time to permit a generation to grow up in Germany in a non-military atmosphere.
4. Rearmament would be the ultimate step in division of East and West into opposite camps.
5. It would be reciprocated by equal, double or triple rearmament in Russia and its satellites.
6. It would accelerate the armaments race.
7. Creation of German divisions would prove that the West was still clinging to the obsolete idea that the world's problems can be settled by force of arms.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By TONY DICKASON and IRVING STRICKLAND

Question: Do you think there should be an attempt to shoot Caddy if and when he does appear?

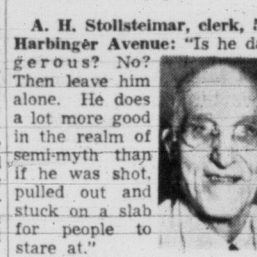

J. Johnston, store owner, 2236 Florence Street: "I do believe there is a Caddy from all the reports, but we should first try and get a picture of him if we can. Rather than shoot him we should definitely try to capture Caddy, but if this is impossible we should try and shoot him to let the world see what he looks like."

Mrs. Jessie Wilkinson, housewife, 639 Foul Bay Road: "I think maybe Caddy exists but don't think he should be shot. And with people wondering about the animal, efforts should be put forward to really investigate the matter, maybe by federal fisheries authorities."

Sharon Golby, student, 247 Denison Road: "No. He should not be shot. If he was a nuisance yes, but he's not. I know lots of kids that come up here from the U.S. and sit on the beaches just watching for Caddy. He is a really good tourist attraction. Let him alone."

Mrs. E. A. Eckdahl, clerk, 2067 Cadboro Bay Road: "I don't think anyone should shoot Caddy, though a person would certainly like to see him. Tourists look for him, too. I get a kick in following his activities in the papers."

A. H. Stollsteimer, clerk, 517 Harbinger Avenue: "Is he dangerous? No? Then leave him alone. He does a lot more good in the realm of semi-myths than if he was shot, pulled out and stuck on a slab for people to stare at."

PPCLI Band Plays At Armoury Sunday

42-Piece Group Makes First Public Appearance; Here for House Opening

Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry regimental band was scheduled to arrive in Victoria at 2.30 this afternoon by steamship from the mainland to prepare for the colorful opening of the B.C. Legislature Tuesday.

Under direction of Capt. F. M. McLeod the 42-piece band will make its first public appearance Sunday at 2.30 p.m. in Bay Street Armoury with a two-hour concert, partly in aid of recruiting.

Members of the band will proceed by military vehicle from the dock to Work Point Barracks, where they will be quartered during their four-day stay.

Monday morning at Work Point the band will rehearse its part in the legislature opening with a 100-man guard of honor composed of active troops from Work Point garrison.

That night, a second concert for the benefit of garrison personnel will be held at 7.30 in the radar building.

Guard of honor and band will march to the legislative buildings at 2.45 p.m. Tuesday for the opening by Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace.

Present will be Work Point Garrison commanding officer Col. J. C. Cave and Brigadier George Kitching, newly-appointed officer commanding B.C. Area, Vancouver. It will be one of Brigadier Kitching's first ceremonial duties, his new post being effective Monday.

Major R. A. McAlpine of 4th Light Anti-Aircraft Battery will command the guard of honor, which will be supplemented by four guns of 119 Medium Anti-Aircraft Battery under Captain John Reeves.

A 19-gun salute will be fired on the arrival of the Lieutenant-Governor.

Stiff Ottawa Opposition Expected To Pipe Lines Guarantee Request

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Formidable opposition in the Cabinet and in parliament is expected to be aroused by a formal application to the federal government by Trans Canada Pipe Lines for a government guarantee of the pipeline bonds.

The application from the pipeline company is known to be before the government. It has been made to Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of trade and commerce, and is now under study by the finance department and the Bank of Canada, government sources said Friday.

Hon. Walter Harris, minister of finance, reportedly has expressed strong opposition to such a proposal.

Mr. Howe favors the proposal, but apparently has encountered stiff opposition from several members of the government as well as from the finance department.

Mr. Howe has been questioned in parliament this week in regard to the application by the pipeline company. He has declined to confirm or deny such an application has been made. Informed sources said the application has been made to Mr. Howe and preliminary discussions with the finance department brought out Mr. Harris' opposition to the proposal.

The finance minister is believed to have insisted on more detailed information before any decision can be made.

The question has been referred to the Bank of Canada for a thorough investigation and report. Estimates of the possible cost to the treasury run as high as $15,000,000.

The Bank of Canada's report is not expected to be available until later next week. When it is forthcoming the matter will be taken to cabinet.

There are three proposals receiving consideration by the government experts:

- (1) The government could take over the pipeline and build it under public ownership.
- (2) The government could take a financial interest in the scheme, put up money for partially financing the project and become one of the owners.
- (3) The government could provide a guarantee of principal and interest of the bonds issued by the pipeline company.

ABOUT THE MIDDLE OF THE 16th CENTURY A PAWNBROKER IN ENGLAND NAMED WILLIAM KEW STARTED A NEW GAME. HE TOOK DOWN THE THREE BALLS FROM OUTSIDE HIS SHOP AND PLACED THEM ON HIS COUNTER IN HIS OFFICE AND THEN WITH A YARDSTICK IN HIS HANDS HE MOVED THE BALLS FROM PLACE TO PLACE. THEN MR. WITH BILL KEW PLAYING WITH A YARDSTICK IT ISN'T HARD TO SEE HOW THE NAME OF THE GAME AND OTHER WORDS IN CONNECTION WITH IT GOT THEIR START. IT IS SAID TOO THAT ONE OF THE FIRST MEN TO TAKE AN INTEREST IN THE GAME WAS A CANON, OR CLERGYMAN AND THE SHOT HE STARTED IS KNOWN TO THIS DAY AS A "CANNON". WHEN THE FIRST RULES WERE DRAWN UP IT IS INTERESTING TO NOTE THAT SMOKING WAS PROHIBITED WHILE A GAME WAS IN PROGRESS. ALSO A FINE WAS LEVIED FOR SWEARING AND MONEY COLLECTED WAS GIVEN TO THE POOR. Key Militiamen To Confer Here On New Set-Up

Reorganization of Vancouver Island units of Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) is now almost completed, officer commanding Col. John Fawcett said today.

On Feb. 12 and 13 key personnel from Nanaimo, Port Alberni, Courtenay, Duncan and Victoria will hold their first all-Island conference since up-Island artillery units were coordinated into 25 Militia Group as an infantry regiment.

They will receive general briefing regarding the new set-up, Col. Fawcett said.

In attendance will be company commanders, second-in-command, training officers, cadet officers, sergeants-major and quartermaster sergeants from each company.

They will be quartered at Work Point Barracks, and will be given a luncheon at Bay Street Armoury Feb. 13.

Furrier Fined $1,500 in Tax Evasion Case

In city police court today a former city furrier was fined $1,500 and $350 costs or three months in jail on a Federal Excise Tax Act violation.

Gordon Heather, now of Vancouver, was previously proprietor of a fur repair business at 1110 Government Street.

He failed to pay an 8 per cent tax on sale price of fur pieces he took in for repair or remodeling, plus an additional 2 per cent old-age security tax, from September, 1951, to December, 1953.

Under the act the tax must be paid on all goods produced or manufactured in Canada.

A recent regulation stipulates that repairing and remodeling of fur articles is "manufacturing."

Monthly statements must be filed accompanied by payment of the tax.

Heather was charged with filing false statements.

Minimum penalty is twice the amount of taxes in arrears plus $100. Heather owned $700.

CITIZENS OPEN PURSES TO AID STRICKEN WOMAN

Victorians have donated $300 to Victoria Lions' campaign, announced Wednesday to raise $5,000 to meet medical expenses of a Victoria woman suffering from a rare disease.

The club, as part of its program of humanitarian work, hopes to pay the bills for Mrs. George Schwabe, victim of the hypoglycemia, low blood sugar. She and her husband leave for the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., Monday.

The pair have spent thousands of dollars over the past two years fighting the illness, and were at the end of their resources when the Lions stepped in.

Donations are welcomed. Victoria Press Ltd. has granted permission for contributions left at its Broad Street office, or they can be mailed to the Lions Club, PO Box 516, Victoria.

Boston Jail Rioters Ask Only 'Hope'

Seven-Man Citizens' Committee Impressed By Convicts' Plea for Better Conditions

BOSTON (UP)—Seven men who persuaded four rebellious convicts to surrender their hostages and end a four-day revolt at Massachusetts State Prison promised today to seek hope for the rebels.

The four convicts, all under sentences of virtual life imprisonment, surrendered unconditionally at 2:30 P.M. Friday and turned over their arms to a seven-man citizens' committee.

A spokesman said the convicts asked only for hope. He said the committee was impressed by the convicts' plea.

The committee, chosen by the rioters themselves, announced it would meet next week to study grievances of the prisoners and to consider recommendations for changes in the state penal system. The group included Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, and executive councillor Patrick J. McDonough.

Gov. Christian Herter announced there would be a "quick trial" for the rebels. He also said there would be an "immediate and exhaustive investigation" of the whole incident, with particular reference to how the convicts obtained their firearms.

In two tense meetings, the convicts appealed to the committee not for the freedom they first sought but for hope. Canham said the four "freely" avowed they had a debt to pay. But they wanted to be brought to trial, to get on with their punishment and to see whether the road—there might not be a year or two of liberty left to them.

The editor said the committee was treated politely by the convicts. He described the convicts as "desperate men, but desperately earnest ones."

Canham said their appeal was "in a phrase, 'Give us hope.'"

Violence never flared during the four-day siege, despite numerous threats and counter-threats on which hinged the lives of five guards and six other prisoners kept hostage by the desperate men.

The convicts first threatened to kill a hostage for every bullet fired. They demanded a get-away car and safe conduct through the rings of armed police surrounding the prison.

Surviving Member Of Triplets Well

VANCOUVER (UP)—A premature baby girl, whose brother and sister died following the triple birth, was in fair condition at hospital here today after a mercy flight from Nelson, doctors said.

The infant is the only surviving member of the triplets born to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Strom of Nelson. The child was picked up by a Canadian Pacific Airlines "Convair" at Nelson and flown to hospital here.

That cost the "invaders" any chance of winning the revolution.

The president said his study of documents seized at the headquarters of rebel military leader Teodoro Picado, Jr., West Point trained son of a former Costa Rican president, showed "they didn't have a fighting chance of winning it."

"Maybe I should say they were brilliant and tough to beat, but they had no conception of logistics," Figueroa said. "It was all theoretical—done by dreamers."

While Figueroa was discussing casualties, a weeping, elderly man approached and asked if the president had any news about his brother who has been missing in action.

After checking official casualty lists again, Figueroa told the old man that his brother was dead and arranged immediate transportation to the front so he could claim the body.

Figueroa told the newsmen he was "appalled by the stupidity of the military planning."

Music Medallists Feature Recital

Toronto Conservatory Award Winners Honored at Alumni Chapter Gathering

Four young students of violin and piano, who had been awarded silver medals in examinations of the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto, and two diploma winners, received their awards Friday night at the annual January special awards recital sponsored by the Alumni Chapter of Victoria of the Royal Conservatory.

The affair took place at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Millburn, Cadboro Bay Road, and presentations were made by Times music and drama critic, Mrs. Audrey St. Denys Johnson, who stressed the value of bursaries and awards in encouraging young students to study, but warned that they must not be considered an end so much as a means to an end and skilled and musical performance.

Silver medals were received by Elizabeth Jane Ritchie, violin, grade II; Audrey Peck, violin, grade III; Karen Dickson, piano, grade V, who also won a Frederick Harris scholarship; and Alumni intermediate bursary.

Miss Ferne M. Rath was presented with her diploma for Associate Royal Conservatory of Toronto as solo performer. She already holds her ARCT teacher's degree. Miss Colleen Erb, who holds the ARCT as a solo performer, received her teacher's diploma.

In the program which followed the presentation, award winners were heard in several selections—Peter Wilkinson, grade IX, piano; Arla Smalley, grade VIII, piano; Barbara Woolson, grade IX, piano, each was heard in a group of solos.

Miss Rath played the Bach Toccata in G and Moszkowski "Liebeswalzer," and Miss Erb, the first movement of Beethoven's Sonata, "Pathétique," and the Rondo from Mozart's Sonata in A Major.

Guests were welcomed by Mrs. T. H. Johns. Miss Noel Smith spoke on behalf of the Conservatory and read a telegram of congratulations from Ettore Mazzolini, Conservatory principal. Miss Karen Dickson thanked the Alumni and Mrs. Gilbert, the hosts.

Can You Fight Off Flu on the Job?

No, in fact, it is highly important to stay in bed from the time you catch influenza until you are completely recovered and the danger of complications is past.

Most of the half million Americans who are believed to have died of influenza in the epidemic of 1918-1919 were actually killed by the complication of pneumonia.

Your doctor can provide you with effective help in preventing influenza and with lifesaving care during illness. We can fill any of your prescriptions promptly.

ON PW VISITS

Chinese Offer 'Genuine' Says Canuck Pilot

OMAHA, Neb. (UP)—Canadian Squadron Leader A. R. (Andy) Mackenzie, visiting here with the parents of a fellow captive in Red China, said today he believed a Communist offer to permit families of jailed Americans to visit them was a "nice gesture" and should be accepted.

Mackenzie, who was released from a Red China prison last December, came here at his own expense to see Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Parks on the first leg of a trip to visit the families of four American airmen with whom he was imprisoned.

He told the Parks their son, Lieut. Roland Parks, whose jet fighter was shot down in North Korea Sept. 4, 1952, was "in very good shape."

Mackenzie said he believed the Chinese Communists' offer to permit American parents to visit their sons in Red prisons was "definitely" genuine.

"The offer, I don't believe, was totally propaganda," he said, "although there may be some propaganda aspect."

Mackenzie said he would stay with the Parks today and go on to Lincoln, Neb., Sunday to visit with Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Cameron, parents of Lieut. Lyle Cameron. He said he would then go to Svea City, Ia., to visit the family of jet ace, Capt. Harold Fischer, and later fly to Philadelphia, Pa., for a visit with the family of Col. Edwin Keller.

Mackenzie said he and the four American fliers exchanged all their letters from home in a round-robin while in prison. Mackenzie said he did not believe relatives of the prisoners would be in personal danger if they went to China.

They should act in China "just like they'd act visiting Canada or any other country," he said.

Mackenzie said he has undertaken the trip to see the families of his four fellow prisoners because of a pledge made as they all drank a toast just before his release.

30-Killed as Bus Falls
MEXICO CITY (AP)—A crowded interurban bus fell down a canyon and burned 30 miles south of here Friday. Police estimated 30 persons were killed. There were 10 survivors, all injured. Police said the headlights of the bus went out as it was crossing a bridge, and the driver lost control.

Bill Planned To Aid China Visits
WASHINGTON (AP)—A leading Republican senator says proposed legislation to pay the expenses of relatives to visit 17 Americans imprisoned in China would serve only "to flame the fires of vicious propaganda."

The comment came from Charles E. Potter of Michigan after such a bill was proposed Friday by Representative Kenneth Keating, also a Republican of New York.

So far the families of only two of the jailed Americans have said they will accept the Chinese offer to let them come. Some others who hesitated mentioned the expense angle, and some obviously had taken notice of an air force warning that the United States government cannot "assume any responsibility for your travel in Communist China, which must necessarily be undertaken at your own risk."

Formal Opening Planned for New CCF Hall
CCF leader Arnold Webster and other party officials will attend the official opening of the new Victoria-Oak Bay CCF Hall at 723 Courtenay in February. No date has been set for opening of the hall, on which $15,000 has been spent, including extensive renovations. The CCF organization sold its former headquarters, on Pandora.

A Close Look at the Money

AS IT SHOULD HAVE DONE long ago, the Canadian Parliament is about to adopt, experimentally, the British system of appropriating public money. Mr. St. Laurent says that the estimates of several government departments will be submitted to a new estimates committee of the House of Commons. Presumably if this experiment is regarded as successful it will be expanded to cover all estimates later on.

At present the whole budget of the government, over four billion dollars in a bundle which few members can ever hope to understand, is dumped into the House about this time every year. Then any member can question any item in the proposed expenditures of the ensuing year.

Many items are questioned. Argument goes on for weeks and ministers must defend and explain their proposed expenditures. But actually no proper examination of the budget is possible by this system.

The House is too busy with other business to spare sufficient time for a detailed study of the budget and, as a result, most of it goes through in huge chunks, with little or no discussion. Secondly, the only men who really know in detail the purposes of the proposed expenditures are the departmental officials, and they cannot be questioned, in the House.

The British Parliament decided long ago to refer the annual budget to a committee of the House which sits for long periods, studies all items at leisure and questions the appropriate officials. By this method the opposition can satisfy itself on every appropriation down to the last penny and every government department is constantly aware that any slackness in administration is liable to be exposed.

Mr. Mackenzie King promised, in his latter years, to imitate the British system in Canada. He never got around to it, however, and Mr. St. Laurent unwisely dropped the whole idea. Now he is reviving it on a partial scale to see how it will work out in practice. It should certainly work better than the present cumbersome, bewildering and slap-dash arrangement.

At the moment Parliament has before it the annual report of the auditor-general, Mr. Watson Sellar, whose business is not to examine the budget but to check up the actual expenditures after they have been made. As usual, Mr. Sellar puts his finger on a few weak spots, particularly in the fiscal practices of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

An estimates committee of Parliament cannot hope to duplicate Mr. Sellar's efficient studies of money already spent—a job for expert accountants absolutely independent of the Government. But if an estimates committee were in being, if every department knew that all its spending plans must run the gauntlet of a searching annual examination, the effect would be highly salutary.

Brannan Lake Investment

THE NEW BRANNAN LAKE School, a few miles from Nanaimo, was formally opened and inspected today. This is the centre which will house young offenders committed to the Boys' Industrial School. The staff and inmates will be transferred to the new quarters in the next few weeks.

The event today is significant far beyond the ordinary considerations of opening ceremonies for a new building. Brannan Lake represents the physical establishment needed for a more hopeful program to rehabilitate boys convicted in the courts. That program could not be put into practice in the inadequate and over-crowded quarters of the present Bisco.

Descriptions of the buildings, the swimming pool and the auditorium indicate that an excellent job has been done. In so far as environment is concerned, conditions look most favorable. If the staff work is adequate—and there is no reason why it shouldn't be—Brannan Lake could be a highly useful and economical factor in helping boys back to decent citizenship.

Costs of a structure such as this are high. Costs of caring for inmates will also be high. But if the boys are rehabilitated, the bargain will be a good one.

There are strong humanitarian reasons for such extensive efforts toward rehabilitation. A case for that approach does not depend upon sentimentality.

Beyond that are the very practical and economic justifications for money spent in the work. They are apparent to anyone who considers the drain on the public purse caused by crime. There are policemen and detectives to pay, there are court costs to meet, there are maintenance charges for prisoners. In addition to that there is the loss sustained by the person against whom the crime has been committed.

If it is possible to prevent boys who have made the kind of mistake which lands them in court from repeating that mistake and thus avoiding the conventional criminal pattern, the costs of prevention are relatively light.

With the present emphasis on correction rather than on punishment for young offenders, the establishment becomes something of a testing agency for British Columbia. It must prove to the doubting Thomases that the modern approach is effective, and it must do this with boys who have shown deficiencies important enough to land them in the Boys' Industrial School.

The staff will not establish a 100 per cent record. It should not be expected to. But the staff should have, at Brannan Lake, far greater opportunities of effecting rehabilitation than have existed in B.C. before.

WHEN HIGH SCHOOL IS TOO DIFFICULT

Fitting Square Pegs in Square Holes

IN familiar discussion on education one point of common ground usually emerges: Too many youngsters are entering high school who should never be there.

The schooling is a waste of time to them and they waste the school's time. They are there because of a prevalent opinion that all children are entitled to a high school education. Actually, attendance in classes does them more harm than good. The work is beyond them. They can't cope with it and they grow resentful.

Educationists know this. In one local junior high school they have attempted to overcome the difficulty by establishing a terminal course. This offers the child who finds high school subjects beyond him a chance to gain as much proficiency as possible in rudimentary subjects. He is given as much as he can master of the simple courses.

But if he leaves school before Grade 9, what chance has he in the working world? What job can he find? The popular assumption has been that industry and business have no place for him.

JOB SURVEY FOR YOUNG
A survey conducted by J. Drummond of S. J. Willis Junior High School, indicates this assumption is only partly correct.

Mr. Drummond made extensive inquiries among local employers. He asked what openings existed for youngsters who never progress beyond Grade 9 and who have scant hope of mastering more advanced courses.

He found an encouraging number of occupations into which these children can be fitted. The total of jobs available for the group, by his survey, roughly corresponds to the number of children who drop out of school at the Grade 9 level. That is the final year of junior high school.

The children concerned are not the bright students. Neither are they those handicapped youngsters who require specialized treatment in classes apart from the public school system. They do, however, need remedial courses in order to acquire a limited proficiency in routine subjects, reading, arithmetic, spelling and the like.

NOT GOOD AT TESTS
They are young people who would fare badly if subjected to the occupational tests applied by many businesses and industries to individuals seeking employment.

According to the survey some employers are prepared to accept applicants without much academic ability provided they are sincere and conscientious in their approach to work.

The pay is not high for these young people, but in some cases—certain branches of the automobile industry for instance—there is chance for advancement.

Most trades require boys with more schooling—some high school training at least—but there are openings for these without it. In the latter, employers favor young apprentices—who are more adaptable and more inclined to concentrate on learning the job than on the immediate wages they are paid.

DR. SCHWEITZER

In a well-deserved tribute to Dr. Albert Schweitzer on the "Church Page" of the Times, several references are made which would lead the uninformed reader to believe that Dr. Schweitzer is a professed Christian. This he is not.

In a prepared statement to the American Humanist Association, Dr. Schweitzer wrote: "I find the articles (in the Humanist) very interesting and my full sympathy is given to the movement which you represent: Humanism. The world thinks it must raise itself above humanism; that it must look for a more profound spirituality. It has taken a false road. Humanism in all its simplicity is the only genuine spirituality. Only ethics and religion which include in themselves the humanitarian ideal have true value. And humanism is the most precious result of rational meditation upon our existence and that of the world."

FOOLISH QUESTION

We hear a lot of foolish questions. The latest is: Should beer be sold in grocery stores?

As if there weren't already far too many outlets for this kind of swill which is often nothing more than a concoction of chemicals and water that is detrimental to the health of both body and mind.

Yet people fill themselves with this obnoxious stuff and pretend to like it—mainly because others are doing it, and the same is true of smoking which is another filthy habit—especially for women—whose ancestors would turn over in their graves if they could see the way some women act today.

AN OBSERVER.

'UNEMPLOYMENT'

Yesterday I bought some very attractive color post cards of Vancouver Island. These are so good there must be a large sale for them. Where were these printed?

In the U.S.A.
Is there any good reason for this? The price was 5 cents a card. Perhaps that is too low to make the work attractive to Canadians? Can you tell us?

Clearly we Canadians have the brains, and can therefore acquire the skills, to do this work.

Send one of your men, Mr. Editor, to check where the many little things on sale in Victoria's stores are made. Perhaps you will be surprised how few are made in Victoria, or even B.C.

'CURIOUS'

It is with considerable sorrow that I read in a recent issue of the paper that a former Times "Golden Boy" of Boxing was sentenced to prison on four charges of false pretences in that he obtained money and goods through worthless cheques.

As one of the officials responsible for selecting this boy for the highest boxing honour which he received at the hands of the Lieutenant Governor, I know him to be a high-spirited and possibly headstrong lad, but little dreamt he would be facing a criminal charge before many years were out.

A lesson such as this only stresses the importance that goes with the handling of youth welfare, and the necessity of guiding—through oneself offering to one's young charges the highest possible example—their footsteps in the way they ought to go. Let us hope that this sentence will act as a deterrent and a warning to any other young athletes and show them that honesty is the best policy in life as in sport.

JAMES AUDAIN.

There is room for this type in such occupations as janitors, salesmen and sales women, swimmers, laundresses, messengers, car and bus washers, warehousemen, seamstresses, office clerks, key punchers, and paint labelers.

Apprenticeships are open to them, too, in such fields as carpentry, benchwork, car-body painting, plastering, plumbing, mechanical work, sheet metal work and welding.

Even among these classes there are, however, varying requirements. Not too many sales jobs are available, nor is there a wide-open field for office clerks with limited schooling. Similarly benchworkers and sheet metal works can use very few.

The report states that eight out of ten positions studied in the survey required applicants with educational rating above Grade 9. That percentage need cause no undue alarm. Most of today's pupils will progress beyond that grade.

A PLACE FOR THEM

The importance of the survey does not rest, however, on confirmation of the belief that greater opportunities exist in the employment field for those who can handle high school work. It rests on the fact that there is a place for those unable to meet such standards. And the available positions do permit the youngsters who will never qualify as bright scholars to find a satisfactory niche in society.

Beyond that, it indicates the virtue in recently established courses which prepare the child to leave school at an early age if school cannot benefit him.—A. H. S.

LOOSE ENDS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Mr. Rajagopalachari's Queer Bomb

MR. C. RAJAGOPALACHARI was once a pupil of Gandhi and later, between 1948 and 1950, Governor-General of India. Now he is a private citizen in Madras and he is filled, as he may well be, with a great fear. A few days ago this harassed Indian statesman decided to communicate his fear to the Western world. He sat down and wrote a long letter to "The New York Times". It is worth reading, not because it offers any practical cure for the human dilemma but, on the contrary, because it proposes to make the dilemma worse. If not fatal, and it shows how an intelligent and sincere Asiatic mind can entirely slip its bearings.

Hutchison

MR. RAJAGOPALACHARI begins by noting the obvious fact that humanity in this year of grace is suspended by a thin thread over an abyss? or, as you might say, is gazing at some comedian or toothpaste advertisement on a television screen while the big show is going on outside and may reach its interesting denouement at any moment.

But what does Mr. Rajagopalachari propose to do about it? He proposes to forget all about negotiations between the West and Russia, for they will never do any good and, instead, to throw all atomic bombs into the Antarctic ocean forthwith.

Everybody, I suppose, or all but a very few, would agree that this is a mighty good idea, provided everybody throws away his bombs at once. Mr. Rajagopalachari wouldn't pause for agreement. He would have the United States throw away its bombs without waiting for Russia to do the same.

In plain terms, the Western world is to disarm itself and stand naked before Russian power, on the assumption that at this spectacle all the free nations will rally around the United States as "a hero or a god." Then, he says, Russia will never dare to use the bomb against the conscience of humanity.

In other words, we are to follow in the world's affairs the theory of passive resistance as followed successfully by Gandhi in India.

The trouble with this theory, of course, is that the world is not India and our enemies are not saints like Gandhi or Mr. Rajagopalachari. And Mr. Rajagopalachari seems to forget that India was saved from Japan a few years ago not by Gandhi, his goat, his nightshirt and his spinning wheel but by the military power of Britain, the United States and their allies.

MR. RAJAGOPALACHARI apparently believes that the Russian imperialists are different from the Japanese. When the American bombs are dumped near the south pole the gentlemen in the Kremlin will see a great light and perhaps move out of their proletarian palaces and spend the rest of their lives weaving cloth and contemplating the stars.

Such is the gamble that the Indian idealist proposes that we should take. What possible exhibit does he find in human history to suggest that the gamble would pay off? What makes him think that the Russian dictators, unlike any of their breed in the whole recorded past, would suddenly turn into saints and worship any divinity except power, the only divinity they know? What makes him suppose, indeed, that the disarmed and powerless nations would rally around the United States when, in fact, they would clamor for admission to the Kremlin before the Russian bomb dropped on them?

NEVERTHELESS, this letter to The New York Times is a fascinating document because it reveals a side of the Asiatic nature which we in the West are apt to forget.

It does not seem, however, to be a very large side. Even in India there cannot be many saints like Gandhi.

WILL IT BE A FIRING LINE?

A Line To Be Drawn in the Far East

THE current flare-up of the struggle between Nationalist Chinese on Formosa and the Red Chinese regime on the mainland has alerted governments throughout the free world. The situation is somewhat akin to that in which two snarling pet dogs on leashes threaten to drag their sponsors into a bout of fist-cuffs. The difference is that in this case the result would not be fist-cuffs, but atomic war.

Since 1948, when Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek fled from the mainland with the remnants of his armies and established himself on the island of Formosa, about 100 miles off the coast, he has lived under the threat of attack by the communists. He in turn has issued frequent declarations of intention to return to China proper and free it of Red tyranny.

In establishing himself on Formosa, Chiang Kai-shek also extended his control over numerous smaller islands between his stronghold and China. Some 200 miles to the north were the Tachen Islands. Off the lower part of Formosa was the Pescadores group. Other islands also were involved.

Limited Contacts

Except for an attack four years ago, when the Reds attempted to storm Quemoy Island, south of the Tachens, and were repulsed, the war has been mainly a verbal one. There have been reconnaissance attacks, engagements between gunboats and some aerial bombing at long intervals.

This week's activity saw the forces of Mao Tse-tung cross the channel and win control of the small island of Yikiangshan, north of the Tachens. Gen. Chiang's reply was to bomb mainland coastal points in the heaviest raids to date, in an effort to destroy invasion fleets.

These actions have put the whole war on a different footing. The danger of the conflict spreading has become acute.

One of the chief entanglements is the United States' pact with the Nationalists. This grew out of the fear during the Korean war that Chinese communists would try a flanking movement by occupying Formosa. This threat the U.S. counteracted by sending warships to impose an unofficial "freeze" on the opponents. Red attempts to occupy Formosa, or conversely, Nationalist attempts to attack the mainland, would be halted by force.

Termination of the Korean war changed this situation. But United States involvement in the Chinese war increased rather than diminished. American technical advice and American equipment had been furnished in quantity to Chiang Kai-shek's forces. To this was added the strength of a mutual aid pact, whereby the United States engaged to come to the aid of the Nationalists if Formosa or the Pescadores were attacked. The pact is now before the U.S. Senate.

This policy was in line with Washington's long-standing support of the Nationalist cause. It was also part and parcel of the military concept of Formosa as a necessary strategic link in the chain of Pacific defense.

But by the week's end a new factor appeared in the situation. President Eisenhower announced that he would ask Congress on Monday for power to draw a line in the Formosa area. If the communists crossed this line, American air and sea power would immediately be thrown into action.

As yet the location of the line had not been announced. How many of the islands adjacent to Formosa would be included was not specified. But the President's request was sharp and clear. If implemented by Congress next week it would clarify the Far East picture and perhaps achieve a stabilization.

Obviously there are great risks. Peiping will chafe under such an ultimatum; may make the move that will precipitate World War Three. But it is evident that the line must be drawn somewhere. And it is equally clear that force is the only voice which communists recognize.

B. A. T.

GENERAL CHIANG KAI-SHEK

Formosa, in brief, was necessary to the defense of the Japanese and Philippine flanks. It was looked upon as in the nature of a huge stationary aircraft carrier. The Pescadores were deemed necessary to the defense of Formosa.

Considerable doubt was left in regard to the status of other islands, including the Tachens. These had been occupied by Chiang's troops and fortified to some extent. But until this week it was not entirely clear whether Washington would consider them part of the defensive perimeter.

These doubts have now been dissolved. State Secretary Dulles made it plain that the United States will not do anything about the loss of Yikiangshan, and further, will not assist in the defense of the Tachens. These islands are not considered of serious importance in defending Chiang's stronghold.

That decision could not have been unexpected by the Nationalists. But what has greatly perturbed them is the United States suggestion that U.S. warships be used to evacuate Nationalist personnel from the Tachens, now apparently the next invasion target for the Reds.

The Nationalists' immediate reaction was to assert that there was no intention of giving up the islands without a fight. Chiang has an estimated 20,000 troops based on the islands. He could ill afford to lose them to superior numbers. But he appears little inclined to accept the loss of face and of territory that would result in evacuation. Whether or not the U.S., by diplomatic weight or through promise of increased support for the main stronghold, can persuade him remains to be seen.

Ceasefire Proposal

Of more far-reaching consequences is the Washington proposal that the United Nations should use its offices to secure a ceasefire between the combatants. Britain has shown interest in the suggestion but says it will take no initiative at the present time. The plan reflects President Eisenhower's concern over the possibility that the Chinese war could explode into a global conflagration.

The reaction in Taipei, Chiang's island capital, was one of consternation. Reports indicated that the Nationalists would reject any plan for a U.N. ceasefire. If such a truce were imposed it would work both ways. It could permanently end Chiang's hopes of ever invading the mainland.

But by the week's end a new factor appeared in the situation. President Eisenhower announced that he would ask Congress on Monday for power to draw a line in the Formosa area. If the communists crossed this line, American air and sea power would immediately be thrown into action.

As yet the location of the line had not been announced. How many of the islands adjacent to Formosa would be included was not specified. But the President's request was sharp and clear. If implemented by Congress next week it would clarify the Far East picture and perhaps achieve a stabilization.

Obviously there are great risks. Peiping will chafe under such an ultimatum; may make the move that will precipitate World War Three. But it is evident that the line must be drawn somewhere. And it is equally clear that force is the only voice which communists recognize.

Eskimo Art

IT is good news that the post office department in Ottawa has assigned Harold Beament to design the new stamp, honoring our Canadian Eskimos. This country's best artists and engravers flocked when it came to produce a commemorative stamp for the Queen.

Keate

Cmdr. Beament has painted at Baffin Island, in the heart of the Eskimo country, and thus sketches from first-hand knowledge. His record as a naval war artist was impressive.

Nevertheless, his new task poses an interesting question: will this highly-talented and highly-educated white man be able to equal the artistry—and, we might add, the technical brilliance of the untutored native he has set out to portray?

The work Canadian Eskimos are doing in sculpture these days is nothing short of amazing. Brought out of the Arctic just a few years ago by a young Ottawa couple, it has captivated the continent. You can see it on display locally at a handicrafts shop on Port Street, called The Quest.

Their soapstone and bone carvings of seals, hunters, Arctic owls, fish and Eskimo families have grace, power, dignity and humor. Studying them, it is quite apparent that the Eskimo artist is a sensitive, alert and observant human being. By turning up a seal's front paws, he captures a mood of floppy amiability. By the cock of an owl's head he brings to life a lively, quizzical and humorous creature. By the heft of a hunter's spear he conveys the bulk and power of strong sinew beneath bulky Arctic clothing.

All this, mind you, with no formal "training" or instruction. Which is why it must be regarded as art, in its pure form.

The note in this space a few days ago regarding our good-looking "over 40s" has elicited a number of nominations—but none more intriguing than that which came in Friday, in the form of an anonymous letter.

The author (a woman, I take it) suggests that I go to Langford, turn right, follow a certain road, look for a house in a certain location, and ask to see "Mrs. R. F."

"She is over 40," the letter-writer states. "I know her exact age, though often I have seen her when she looked 10 years younger. Not wanting to embarrass her, I better stay anonymous."

The author of this letter does not, however, make clear whether or not the woman's husband owns a shotgun.

Two other letters in the mail-bag: Harry Duker of Vancouver writes protesting the fact that the government has left his beloved "Totem Land" insignia off the new license plates. The totem insignia was not altogether a success, but Harry was pressing for the simple legend atop the plates. With a potential of 200,000 free billboards gone aglimmering, who can blame him for squawking?

Then there was the letter which said, simply: "Why the hell don't you get another picture at the top of your column? That one makes you look like a Socrate!"

And that—if you will permit me a pun which only newspapermen will understand—is "the unkindest cut of all."

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE C. REYBURN

Thrill of an Ocean Liner

LONDON—I was seeing someone off on a liner to Canada and I wasn't on board two minutes before I was conscious of something that always gets me about big ships. It is not the excitement of the passengers, the general noises of a liner making ready for sea. What appeals to me is—of all things—the smell.

There's a particular sort of odor that hangs around the passageways of a ship, a special sort of shipboard smell that people who like to travel would rather have in their nostrils than the cleanest of clean country air. The acrid smell of train smoke has for me the same sort of attraction.

Smells always associate themselves in your mind with something and train smoke means going places. . . . but on a small scale compared to the foreign lands and faraway places that the smell of an ocean liner conjures up in one's mind.

Once you've known that smell you never forget it. What it's made up of exactly I've never been able rightly to analyze. Some of it comes from the coils of tarred rope. Mixed in with that is the smell of the salt left on the bulkheads along the decks, where sea water has dried. Added to this is the rubbery smell of the flooring of the passageways.

And floating around all the time is the yeasty odor of baking that comes drifting up from the galleys below. Add these together and you've got that special shipboard smell that is always present but never unpleasant.

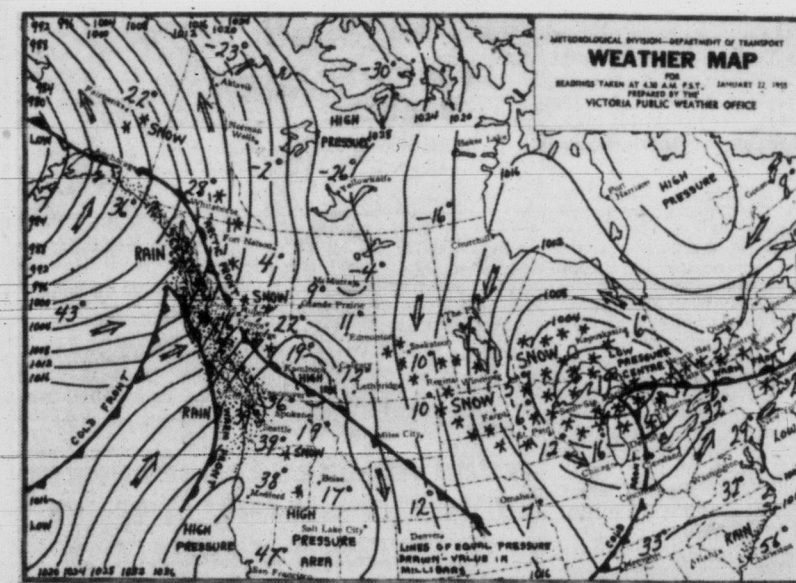

It reminds me of going into Hobart, Tasmania, by night, seeing all the lights stretched out across the darkness and trying to visualize the look of the city in daytime by the lights of its highways and byways. . . . standing at the stern of a ship in rough weather and having the thrill of sliding down into the valleys of mountainous waves and up out of them again, to the sound of the whirling of the momentarily exposed propeller. . . . sailing up the St. Lawrence, probably the most dramatic entrance to any country in the world. . . . sleeping on deck in the tropics and watching the top of a mast tree designs among the stars above as the ship rolls in an ocean swell. . . . leaning on the rail and gazing out over a moonlit sea on a mellow night in the Mediterranean, with the sound of the ship's orchestra behind you and beside you a girl who, no matter how homely she may be, takes on a beauty in those circumstances beyond her wildest dreams.

I have spent a good deal of time on ships and before I was married I lived a lot too much in boarding houses. I'd say that if the smell of an ocean liner is up at the top among my favorite smells, rock bottom is the smell of a boarding house.

Some boarding houses I've been in, the stench that greets you in the hall is so strong that you feel you could scrape it off the walls. Fried food, boiled cabbage and musty furniture—these are the main ingredients and there's nothing quite so unkind to the nostrils. With boarding houses it's not so much the smell as the association it brings. The smell of a ship is nostalgic and pleasing because whenever you encounter it you are reminded of going to places you had never been to before.

But the boarding house smell does nothing but confirm for those who live there something they know only too well—that they hate living in a boarding house.

Week-End Weather Picture Across Canada

SYNOPSIS—A steady flow of mild Pacific air today brought rain along the entire B.C. coast and snow throughout the western interior. A series of disturbances were moving toward the coast in this mild air, with fresh to strong winds recurring at exposed coastal points. Temperatures were much milder along the coast and with increased cloud overnight temperatures will be somewhat higher in the interior, although maximums will remain about the same.

A Difficult Decision

THE LADYSMITH CHRONICLE

Premier W. A. C. Bennett, in a recent statement, offered soothing words for property owners when he said that the new school financing formula will reduce the property tax burden on dwellings in the province. This may be true of other areas, but there is every indication that this long awaited formula is going to mean more taxes for home owners in this city.

An analysis of the local tax situation reveals that in recent years the rebates from the SS & MA and other provincial taxes have been sufficient to meet the full amount of the school tax requirement. In 1953 these rebates actually exceeded the school tax requirement. This has left the city with only the school debt charges to raise from local tax sources.

No matter how generous the new formula may be it is most unlikely that it will provide for the full amount of school operating costs from provincial revenue, and even if it did, the city would be no better off than it has been.

There is also the fact that the equalization of assessments does not necessarily mean an increase in taxes and this is quite correct, assuming that the city's budget can remain the same as last year. There are indications now, however, that the city will be forced to either increase its budget or drastically curtail its local works program. As the works program has been a matter of pride to every citizen, the council members will have a difficult decision to make.

A Worthwhile Movement

THE REVIEW, SIDNEY

Newly-organized Sidney and District Garden Club will fill a gap in the community life of this area. The Review congratulates sponsors of the new club and sincerely hopes that it will flourish in the years which lie ahead.

No other part of Canada enjoys the climate of this area. It is ideal for the growth and development of thousands of different blooms. By encouraging gardeners to grow new and beautiful types of flowers, the club is making a very worthwhile contribution to the entire district.

Many enthusiastic gardeners are no longer young. Some of them are not wealthy but they can meet at the Garden Club and exchange plants and ideas to the mutual benefit of all.

Unequal Penalties

THE COWICHAN LEADER

Sometimes it is difficult for the public to believe that the ends of justice are always being served. We refer to recent motoring offenses.

A contrast was afforded recently here. A Nanaimo lawyer paid a fine of $20 and costs for speeding. Reported evidence was that his speed had reached 90 miles an hour. About the same time a Duncan man was fined $25 and costs for failing to possess a valid driver's license. The young man was 21 only in November and had failed to change his minor's license.

Surely a warning in the case of the young man would have been enough. He had had previous offenses. His error was largely an oversight. We cannot feel the same about the lawyer, particularly as from the nature of his profession a part of his income is derived from legal processes resulting from human error.

Recently in Nanaimo the magistrate there is reported to have ordered a youth to get a haircut before he would consider his case. This may sound simple enough. However, was the youth guilty of contempt of court? Regardless of one's opinion of modern hair styles such a thing as an illegal haircut has not appeared.

Enforcement of military law is harsher than civil law. The haircut incident, as reported, smacks of military law. An opportunity has been missed.

Commission Amalgamates Up-Island Power Districts

CAMPBELL RIVER—Amalgamation of the Campbell River and Comox Valley power districts, with an equalization of rates between the two areas, was announced Friday night by J. N. Olsen, B.C. Power Commission manager for the two districts.

The change will become effective for all meter readings after April 1, start of the Crown-owned utility's fiscal year. Speaking at a Campbell River Chamber of Commerce meeting, Mr. Olsen said that, as a result of the amalgamation, residential rates in the organized area of Campbell River village will be reduced two cents in the first block of power used each month, and a similar reduction will come into effect for all commercial customers in the Campbell River district.

Mr. Olsen pointed out that because of the rapid growth in the past five years, the Comox Valley (including Courtenay, Comox and Cumberland) and Campbell River districts now are considered a "unified economic and geographic area for power distribution purposes. This was the prime consideration in the commission's decision to combine the two power districts.

The rate equalization will mean gross power bills for residential customers in Campbell River village will be reduced 80 cents per month for virtually all homes having lighting and minor appliances only. Gross monthly bills of customers with electric ranges or electric water heaters, or both, will be down $1.20.

Ceremony Held At New School In Belmont

Cost $534,000; Students Lauded

One of the first pupils to attend the old Metchoshin School was guest at opening ceremonies Friday night of the new $534,000 Belmont Junior-Senior High School on Station Road.

Robert Whitty, 87, heard deputy minister of education, H. L. Campbell claim that B.C. students are of a higher calibre than those of other provinces. A larger percentage complete high school and go on to university, he said.

"Ours are better than the best and our average is better than the average of the world," he added.

Mr. Campbell took the place of Education Minister Ray Wiliston, who was unable to attend. Also on hand from the education department was Dr. William Plenderleith, co-ordinator of services.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

Among speakers were E. Emery, former chairman of Sooke School Board, and W. Parker, president of the Belmont Parent-Teacher Council.

Musical selections were presented by Mrs. T. Flatman, soloist, accompanied by J. Fraser; the Belmont senior choral group conducted by Mrs. Phyllis Dulmage, and the junior choir led by Miss Shirley Babb.

Final item of the program was a ceremony in which John Williams, school board chairman, turned the keys of the school over to A. H. Stephenson, principal, who in turn passed them on to Bernard Wachter, president of the students' council.

After the program visitors were taken on a tour of the building and served tea.

Fred Thornber Magistrate for Sooke District

SOOKE—Fred Thornber, Coopers Cove, who has served as a justice of peace in this district for many years, was sworn this week as a stipendiary magistrate.

The ceremony in the RCMP office in Sooke was performed by J. Elliott, JP, from Jordan River, before a small audience of residents.

Const. P. Humphries, RCMP, pointed out that approval of Mr. Thornber's appointment by the attorney-general's department will mean that many more cases, previously referred to higher courts in Victoria, will be handled locally.

Herring Fleet Given 10,000-Ton Increase

Mid-Island Quota for Season 25,000 Tons; Fishing Resumes North of Campbell River

Department of Fisheries in Ottawa has authorized a further 10,000-ton extension of the herring quota in the middle east coast sub-district of Vancouver Island, A. J. Whitmore, chief supervisor of fisheries, has announced.

This is the second extension of the original 10,000-ton quota for this area, the first having been for a 5,000-ton addition from a restricted area that was filled last Tuesday.

The new extension, if taken, will bring the total catch for the area concerned—north of Campbell River—to 25,000 tons.

CAREFUL CHECKS

Action on the extension was prompted after careful checks had been made by scientists and fisheries officers of the large body of herring migrating through Johnstone Straits.

Fishing will open Sunday at 2 p.m. in the area between Browns Bay and Elk Bay, and will be restricted to waters north and west of Seymour Narrows.

Fishing may be suspended by the chief supervisor of fisheries before the extended quota is filled, if it is felt necessary to do so in the interest of conservation.

WILL DISCUSS BOAT SERVICE

GANGES—A special meeting to discuss transportation needs will be held Tuesday evening at 8 in Mahon Hall under the sponsorship of the Salt Spring Island Chamber of Commerce.

Chaired by A. M. "Bus" Brown, president of the chamber, the meeting will be open to all residents of Salt Spring Island and will bring under discussion ferry service to the Gulf Islands and the possible withdrawal of the subsidy.

Scots to Form New Platoon At Sidney

A mortar platoon will be organized at Sidney, according to Lieut.-Col. Jack Fawcett, commanding officer of the Canadian Scottish Regiment.

Sidney once had a battery of the 156 Heavy Anti-Aircraft Regiment, but it was transferred to the strength of the 5th West Coast Harbor Defense Battery in Victoria.

A recruiting meeting will be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Patricia Bay Airport Armoury. Men are wanted for the battalion, and boys of 14 to 17 years will be accepted as cadets. Sgt. James Ellis and Sgt. Robert Harris have been posted to the new platoon. Chief instructor will be WO2 Frank Hopwood, and Const. George Kent, RCMP, Sidney, who served in a Canadian Scottish mortar platoon in the Second World War, will assist in recruiting.

20-Foot Fall Injures 2 at Port Alberni

PORT ALBERNI—Two contracting men, a large Lund and Len Kjerfve, were taken to West Coast Hospital Thursday afternoon, after falling from a 20-foot wall.

The men, partners in Port Home Builders, were at work on the Stewart & Hudson building supply warehouse now under construction on Third Avenue.

Lund is reported to have shoulder injuries and a broken pelvis. His partner has a fractured hip and elbow.

NEW STAMP—“Towered Italia” is theme of this stamp just issued by Italian government. It has head of a young woman wearing a towered wall crown. The crown is symbolic of many towers in Italy, such as one at Pisa.

STAMP CORNER

By REG NAIRNE

When Everest was conquered in 1953 India marked the occasion by issuing a set of stamps which showed a view of the famous mountain.

Not to be outdone, Pakistan has just released a stamp to commemorate the first successful ascent of Mount Godwin Austen, better known as K2, the world's second highest peak. This giant is 28,250 feet high and many unsuccessful attempts had been made before it yielded on July 31 to a team of Italian and Pakistani climbers under the leadership of Ardito Desio, professor of geology at Milan University.

The stamp, a 2 annas, is violet in color and is line engraved. It shows a fine view of the mountain, which is actually much more imposing in appearance than Everest.

The U.S. will be issuing at least four commemorative stamps this year, in addition to further values of the handsome new definitive series. Subjects to be commemorated are the 150th anniversary of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, Centenary of Michigan State College and Pennsylvania State University, 50th Anniversary of Rotary Club and Centenary of the Sea Locks at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

SCIENCE FICTION

THE TREASURY OF SCIENCE FICTION CLASSICS edited by Harold W. Kuebler—Hanover House.

This book coincides neatly with recently published “treasures” of science fiction, for Kuebler has dipped into the classics and brought many of the better ones together. He has drawn on Edgar Allan Poe, H. G. Wells, Jules Verne and Arthur Conan Doyle among others.

Enthusiastic Biography Of Gilbert & Sullivan

But Author Adds Little to Knowledge Of Famous Theatrical Collaborators

(Reviewed By A. M. Thomas)

WANDERING MINSTRELS WE: The story of Gilbert and Sullivan. By Signum A. Lavine. Dodd, Mead & Company Ltd.-303 pp. $4.00.

Enthusiasm is the principal quality Mr. Lavine has brought to his production of a new joint biography of history's greatest theatrical collaborators.

Unfortunately, enthusiasm is not enough. Seasoned Gilbert and Sullivan devotees already know all the facts that Mr. Lavine has presented and his method of compilation, one chapter to Gilbert, the next to Sullivan, makes for a disjointed narrative unlikely to attract others.

CONTRASTING PERSONALITIES

The author, a 22-carat, dyed-in-the-wool Gee and Esser, has drawn clear enough portraits of the two. Gilbert is pictured as one born to wealth, a man of obsessions and a towering choler, in violent contrast to Sullivan, the son of an army bandmaster who struggled up from near-poverty on the strength of sheer talent, maintaining throughout a gentle placidity.

Mr. Lavine, however, fails, as so many biographers before him have failed, to show what was the catalyst that fused their respective genius. Neither man could work with any other. While Sullivan did produce some music that stands by itself, Gilbert's attempts as a dramatist all failed miserably.

TASK COMPLETED

Toynbee History Study Reflects Life's Work

A STUDY OF HISTORY by Arnold J. Toynbee, Oxford Press.

Arnold J. Toynbee, one of the world's most profound historians, has completed this work entitled simply "A Study of History."

The last four volumes of the 10-volume work have now been released.

The first six volumes were released three at a time in 1934 and 1939. The Study has been in preparation since the late 1920s and reflects a lifetime of seeking to perceive the master patterns into which thousands of years of human events have arranged themselves.

That such seeking is a never-ending and infinitely complicated task is borne out by the complex character of Toynbee's scholarship and writing.

REWARDING READING

It makes challenging and rewarding reading for those hardy enough to stick with Toynbee in his guided tour.

Toynbee views whole civilizations with an almost Olympian detachment: "For some five or six thousand years ending August 6, 1945, Man in Process of Civilization has been indulging in wars and class-conflicts between fractions of societies."

Tells of Man Who Won Turks Independence

GHOST ON HORSEBACK by Ray Brock, Little, Brown Co., Toronto.

In the form of an historical novel Ray Brock, who was a correspondent in Turkey for the New York Times, tells the story of the incredible Kemal Ataturk, the father of the Turkish Republic.

Mustapha Kemal was born in the slums of Salonika, tough, hard muscled, stubborn even in youth. He won his first fame as a captain at Gallipoli when he whipped his men into shape to beat back stronger forces of Anzacs in a display of physical daring and military manoeuvring that won him a battlefield promotion to general.

HATED OUTSIDERS

His rise was rapid, but his way in politics was difficult. His enemies were within as well as without. But he loved Turkey and hated outsiders—especially the Germans who ran the Sultan's armies and who brought Turkey into the First World War. He shook off the German shackles, almost single-handedly outwitted the British, French, Italian, Russians and Americans, and drove the Greek invaders from Turkey in a series of notable battles.

Almost overnight Kemal changed the face of the land. He wiped out the influence of Islam. He modeled his government after the best features of western governments.

Brock has captured his spirit with rare skill.

Aga Khan Tells His Life Story

The Aga Khan, spiritual leader of millions of members of the Ismaili branch of the Shia sect of Muslims, had tea with Queen Victoria and has lunched with Queen Elizabeth II. And in between he has lived a full and rich life.

Now 77, the Aga Khan has written the story of his life. It is "The Memoirs of Aga Khan: World Enough and Time" (Simon & Schuster) with a preface by W. Somerset Maugham, one of the many celebrities he claims as a friend.

The memoirs tell of the years he served as an unofficial ambassador of the Far East when India was the brightest star in the British Empire, and of later days when he was head of the League of Nations.

The Aga Khan writes with great candor of his professional, religious and personal life.

He writes with wit and charm, whether it is chronicling history or telling of his feelings for Rita Hayworth, Elsa Maxwell or others of the "Riviera set." Once when he and the Begum were robbed he gave the robbers a tip as they left with priceless jewels and furs.

He also looks into the future and wonders where Russian expansionism will lead. He proposes an entente cordiale between India and Pakistan to kill any seeds of war between them.

American in Line With Seafarths

ACTION WITH THE SEA-FORTHES by Charles Monroe Johnson, Vantage Press, New York.

The author was an impatient to join the Seafarths so that he could get into action in a hurry. He fought the dirty battles of the "forgotten war," from ridge to ridge from the foothills of Sicily to the bootstraps of the Po. He left most of his comrades-in-arms on those inhospitable slopes, until at last he was the only member of the platoon who made the first landing and was still serving in the line.

The philosophy with which he lards his memoirs seldom rises above the level of the fox-hole bull session, a forum of worthy but seldom brilliant or well-informed opinion.

Few writers of the Second World War, however, have done as well as Johnson in describing the private soldier's war, the way battles are fought and the lives of the men who fight them.

THE HUNTERS AND THE HUNTED by Ivan Bahriany, Burns & MacEachern, Toronto. A novel of a household in the Ukraine winning its way against political pressure and the forces of nature.

COMMEMORATIVE Italian postal authorities have just issued this stamp honoring the Marian Year. The stamp features "The Madonna of Pity" from a marble group by Michelangelo, now in St. Peter's Basilica in Rome.

BOOK TALK

By JAMES SCOTT

I have just finished reading "Sunset and Evening Star," the latest volume of Sean O'Casey's incredible biography, and my mind turns much more readily to the Old Sod than to the land of the heather. At that, as far as books go, reluctantly I must admit that Ireland in this century has attracted a lot more attention in the literary world than the country of my own ancestors.

Perhaps this boyo O'Casey can provide the answer. Those who have read any or all of the previous five volumes of his autobiography will know that this is probably one of the most friscious pieces of literature yet produced in the 20th century. They will also have fallen victim to its fascination and be eager to read the latest.

Rough Tongue for Enemies

Now this attraction is not the rather shameful kind which exists because most human beings like to hear or read about somebody important getting a dressing down. For those whom he hates, O'Casey has the roughest kind of tongue. He is bitter, unfair, malicious and sometimes even downright dishonest. There is not the slightest doubt about this whatsoever and yet every time anybody has pointed this out, in say a book review, O'Casey has risen in honest and vehement denial. He just can't see that, as far as his prejudices go, he has no control of himself at all.

Yet there is more to this fabulous performance than this. O'Casey is one of the all too few genuine wits of our day. Every nasty slap is phrased so delightfully that you can't really be too annoyed with his principle.

Like Every Real Irishman

As I read "Sunset and Evening Star" it occurred to me that O'Casey was just another such lad. Like every other real Irishman I have ever known he can talk himself into anything and it is particularly easy to talk himself into a fight. The momentary results can be harmful and nasty but, seen in retrospect, they are so ludicrous you forgive him all.

After all, it is well known that all sons of Old Ireland are at least partly kings and poets. You can't expect them to behave like ordinary mortals, but you can expect them to behave like kings and poets. That's the way it is with O'Casey. He had a disregard for the rights of others that befits a despot, but he has a gift with words that's hauntingly beautiful.

In sober literary discussions in this country, I often hear Ireland held up as an example of a small country which has managed to take front rank in the world of letters. I hear Canadian nationalists draw the erroneous conclusion that Ireland has produced so much wonderful literature because its sons and daughters were inspired by a narrow and fervent patriotism for their native land. I don't believe a word of it.

Poetry Bred in Their Poems

Lots of other countries have had their moments of intense nationalism without producing a word of writing of lasting value. My own theory is that, regardless of how things were going politically, Ireland would still produce great artists because the poetry is bred in the bone.

These days there is another of those periodic resurgences of the demand that our government set up some sort of federal agency to patronize the arts in Canada. They would like to call it the Canada Council. Well, let them go ahead. The best you can say for it is that there is probably no harm in it.

But if any mother's son in this land thinks he's going to create a great literature by order in council or act of parliament he's farther away from reality than those dreamers in Jack Concannon's bar.

They, at least, had the stuff of poetry in them. The makers of statutes are notoriously non-poetic. If you don't believe it, read the statutes they write.

TOO MANY SCARES

Doctor-Author Attacks Health Fund Campaigns

FREEDOM FROM FEAR, by Dr. Lester L. Coleman, Hawthorn Books, New York.

Dr. Lester L. Coleman, New York physician, surgeon and authority on psychosomatic medicine, attacks current "scare" campaigns for the purpose of raising funds for health organizations as "multipliers of fear" in his book, "Freedom From Fear," published by Hawthorn Books, Inc.

Dr. Coleman writes: "If we were to believe all the distorted, fear-provoking statistics spoon-fed to us through all media of communication, this is what our destiny would be like:

DISMAL VIEWPOINT
"By 1968, one out of every five of us would be dying of cancer while one out of 20 of us would be in a mental institution. We probably would be visited from time to time in the hospital or asylum by one of our children, a victim of cerebral palsy or polio, while our second child would be at home, ill with rheumatic fever. The third child would, under these circumstances, be forced to go to his psychoanalyst alone. Mind you, this could only happen if we were fortunate enough to have escaped the ever-compounding effects of heart disease, tuberculosis, arthritis and smoking cigarettes; and if we had not been previously destroyed by Fourth of July or Memorial Day accidents."

TILL OF ANXIETY
Pointing out that this picture is not presented "as an amusing concept, but rather to provide some idea of how we are shocked into destructive anxiety," Dr. Coleman illustrates the toll taken by such anxiety in physical and emotional health as well as in productivity and happiness. He emphasizes that these fears are made unnecessary by the great progress in medicine during the past years. A practicing physician in New York City, specializing in diseases of the ear, nose and throat, Dr. Coleman is a frequent contributor to medical and lay publications on various phases of medicine and surgery, particularly on the preparation of children for surgery. He is also executive producer of the national television series of the Medical Society of the County of New York, "Here's to Your Health."

UP AND DOWN THE GLENS by Dorothy Dunbar, Myerson Press, Toronto, 137 pages, $3.25.
The author of "Up and Down the Glens of Early Days of Glenarry, Ont., a part of Canada once more Scotch than Scotland." She tells how old customs are still preserved and the Gaelic is still spoken.

Gradually, however, as the old residents pass away, the country is becoming more and more French-speaking.

Many excellent illustrations by Stuart McCormick add considerably to the charm of the book.

GOLDEN SUNSET . . . By Theodore Rousseau

ART in REVIEW

By COLIN GRAHAM

It is gratifying at long last to be able to hang on our walls an assemblage of European works from an older period.

Next Tuesday the gallery opens the week with a group of 19th century French oils. Most of these come from the National Gallery at Ottawa which, after years of cajoling by small galleries such as ours, has decided to run the risk of letting the works go on tour of Western Canada. The remainder come from local private collections and from the permanent collection of the Vancouver Art Gallery, to both of whom the Arts Centre owes a great deal for their never-failing readiness to lend according to our needs.

BROAD PANORAMA
Regular readers of this column may recall my often-stated view that in a city with only one public, non-commercial gallery that gallery's function is to present through its exhibitions a broad panorama of the art of all cultures and periods. This of course is just a counsel of perfection where non-fireproof galleries are concerned. Nevertheless the Arts Centre in conjunction with the 16 other galleries in the Western Canada Art Circuit, has persisted with the aim of fully balanced exhibition schedules on the theory that even if that aim is beyond reach you will get a lot farther toward the goal if you proceed on the assumption that it is not.

The present exhibition is not a great one by any means. It contains none of the greatest names from the greatest of all centuries in French art, unless you are disposed to call Daubigny or Rousseau great. It contains nevertheless enough good painting to satisfy almost anybody's taste, for the period was rich in minor talents.

BARBIZON PAINTERS
The main emphasis of the show is on the Barbizon painters, that small band of hardy landscapists who in the 1830's settled in the village of Barbizon a few miles outside Paris, just on the skirts of the forest of Fontainebleau. The Canadian Group of Seven follows this exhibition next month. Oddly enough it was against the influence of the Barbizons that the group originally had to fight in order to establish their right to paint as they wished. Yet the two groups have a good deal in common.

Like the Group of Seven the members of the Barbizon school succeeded in establishing what might roughly be called a national school of landscape painting. Like the group also, they were a band of generous-natured and mutually loyal artists who came together partly to resist the hostility of academic and conservative critics.

History, as one of my old historian friends never tires of pointing out, is a master of irony. Surely it is one of that muse's most ironic arrangements that the Barbizons in their turn became, through their influence on painting in Canada, the academic formula against which the group had to revolt.

The Bach Family
Among the numerous wonders produced by the human race, few are as wondrous and, at the same time, as little appreciated as that of the Bach family of Thuringia of Germany. It flourished for well over two centuries, which could be said of many another family. But this family produced, in the main, musicians—hundreds of them.

For the first time a biography has been written of the family, although there have been scores of biographies of its great genius, Karl Keiringer's "The Bach Family" (Oxford) is a very fat volume, laden with family trees, musical examples, and genealogical detail, but it is fascinating reading, nevertheless.

MRS. GRUNDY RIDES AGAIN

By TOM A. CULLEN

How long will it be before the British start putting pants on piano legs, as they did in the days of Queen Victoria?

Or will the word "legs" itself, become taboo, being replaced by the more refined and genteel "limbs."

Observers are seriously asking themselves these questions as the big moral "clean-up" drive gets into high gear in England.

Mrs. Grundy is riding again, and this time American books, plays and films are among the victims of her witch hunt.

Such outstanding American films as "On the Waterfront" are being given "X" certificates by the British censors, which means that they can be seen only by adults.

This bars them from the neighborhood "family" cinemas, but does not prevent West End exhibitors from advertising them as "The Xiest Film of the Year."

(BB PLUS) "DESIREE" (ROYAL): — Once again Marlon Brando proves that he is one of the screen's most versatile actors and why he is expected to be nominated for an Academy Award next month.

Even in this rather inadequate story about Napoleon's life, his powerful presence cannot be overlooked. It thrusts through everything so that when he walks on set one focuses upon him beyond all others.

In the past 12 months this talented young actor has run up an unbroken string of personal triumphs. "Julius Caesar," "The Young Lions," "On the Waterfront" likely to be nominated among the five best pictures of 1954 and now "Desiree."

OF THEM ALL, however, "Desiree" is the least. Based on Annette Selinko's story it tells of Napoleon as an ambitious young officer meeting with Desiree Clary, (Jean Simmons), daughter of a wealthy Marseille merchant, and falling in love with her.

Of course she doesn't fit in with his lofty plans and she jilts her for the courts of Paris and his Josephine (Merle Oberon). Desiree, however, meets, falls in love with the Little Corporal's general, Jean-Baptiste Bernadotte (Michael Rennie). From here on in the picture is a recital of Napoleon's dreams, ambitions, loves, with Simmons, Rennie and Miss Oberon as the rueful antagonists.

THE PICTURE HAS ITS moments to be sure and they are gorgeous ones in De Luxe color on CinemaScope's wide screen. Scenes in the Paris courts, the castles, the gay gatherings and the coronation all give a glimpse of 18th century court life (such as one lady wearing rings on her toes) that can match anything one has read about the period. And it is because of these things that "Desiree" is well worth seeing.

Unfortunately it is these same fine sets and decor that overpower the story and sometimes even the principals themselves. For a play to accomplish its purpose there should be a blending, a careful shading between backdrop and actor. One must be moved to tears to anger, to laughter, to love or what ever the story is intended to do. One has to want the hero and heroine to succeed and the villain to fail otherwise the purpose of the plot has been foiled.

One must care as to how it all works out. "Desiree" just fails to accomplish this mission. Which is a pity.

WHEEL ON THE CHIMNEY. By Margaret Wise Brown and Tibor Gergely (Lippincott). It's springtime in Europe and two storks build a nest on a wheel on a farmer's chimney. At the first sign of winter they join the flock to fly southward to Africa. The wondrous migration is conveyed in simple words and colorful pictures that reflect the grace of their flight and the beauty and diversity of the landscapes beneath them. Reading level: picture book.

Successful Composer Tells How To Do It

By RON EVANS

Writing an opera, says Benjamin Britten, is rather like writing a letter.

The young musician, recognized as one of Britain's great composers, uses a system of "mental composition," also employed by Mozart.

"You first create the music mentally," says Britten. "It's rather like composing a letter in your head—except that you use notes instead of words."

WRITES "PETER GRIMES"

Back in Britain, his first full-length opera, "Peter Grimes," was finished in 1945. This drama of an East Angles fisherman had its premier at the first postwar performance in London's Sadler's Wells theatre. It was hailed by critics as "a masterpiece."

Within the next three years, "Peter Grimes" was performed in the United States, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Switzerland, Germany, Austria and Italy. It has been presented several times in Canada by the CBC.

Britten followed up this success with "The Rape of Lucretia" in 1946 and later "Albert Herring." "Let's Make an Opera" "Billy Budd," a revised version of "The Beggar's Opera" and "Gloriana," commissioned by the Arts Council of Great Britain for the coronation.

In 1947, Britten helped found the English Opera Group, a small company which has since appeared in theatres throughout Britain and Europe.

COMPOSER AT FIVE A dentist's son, born in Lowestoft, Suffolk, Britten started composing when he was five.

At 14, he had already composed 10 piano sonatas, six string quartets, three piano suites, an oratorio and dozens of songs.

After a stint in London's Royal College of Music, Britten worked on two films in 1935, "Coal Face" and "Night Mail"—now regarded as documentary classics.

"I had to work quickly," he recalls, "to force myself to work when I didn't want to and to get used to working in all kinds of conditions."

In 1939, he went to North America and completed his first composition, the violin concerto

Guild to Present Clever Crime Play Four different sets make exacting demands on the backstage personnel of Victoria Theatre Guild, as they prepare for the season's fourth production, "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse."

This clever crime play has had a distinguished career and the title role has been made famous by such actors as Sir Ralph Richardson, and the late Godfrey Tearle.

Well-known Theatre Guild actor, Don Ross, will be seen in the role here when the play opens at the Langham Court Theatre for a week's run, Feb. 12. He will be supported by a cast of guild favorites, including Connie Thompson, Stan Wade and Elizabeth Knight, Director is Len Lauk.

Lion-Hunting Safer Conductor Claims

By HANS GRUBER

That part of my life which is devoted to newspaper-writing is by far the most dangerous one. Other columnists must also often think that, by comparison with their calling, hunting wild animals in Africa would be a far safer occupation.

My distinguished (newspaper-writing colleague), Padre Hills, has only recently come in for a public rebuttal for the opinion he expressed concerning a certain orchestral instrument—Mr. Steed must have a small collection of "Letters to the Editor" in his scrap-book in answer to his pains (how fitting the first part of the word "scrap-book" turns out to be, sometimes!)

FEARS CONSPIRACY I, myself have, shall I say, an unkind anonymous letter from someone who—it may be—sells a certain make of car which I did not praise as highly as other makes. Those of us who have been made to feel first hand the hazards of writing for so public a medium as a widely-read newspaper may be excused for concluding that a conspiracy exists which would allow free expression of opinion, or of facts, to everyone save to us of the columnist-fraternity.

In all the hundreds of columns I have been allowed to write for these weekly pages, it was inevitable, that I should have dealt in personalities. The reason was not because I rejoice in public, or, for that matter, in private, controversy. This is the reason why, when I speak the reason why, when I speak about definite people and named them, I sought those to whom I could give credit for worthwhile accomplishment.

AND SO AU REVOIR But when they claim to be misunderstood or misinterpreted, then the fault is all the more theirs, and all the less mine. They must learn to take good care in expressing themselves in such a way as to convey what they mean, and not leave themselves open to grievous misinterpretations. In their protestations of innocence, they would also do well, in their own interest, to read more carefully what exactly was said about them, otherwise they are apt to defend themselves for things they were not accused of to begin with. "Who excuses himself, accuses himself," and since I see no reason why that should not apply to myself also, au revoir until next week.

Just Follow the Bouncing Ball

The loneliest piece of cowhide in the city Friday night was that poor defenseless basketball that had the misfortune to bounce into a crowd of ball-hungry Victoria College and Normal School players. The mishap occurred at Vic High gym during the third annual Inter-

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

They don't come any greater than the jumpin' jacks of Harlem.

The amazing Harlem Globetrotters will be in town Monday and we commend their appearance to you for two reasons. First, there isn't any better on the boardwalk of basketball than the magicians of the maple midway.

Secondly, all proceeds from the show will go into a trust fund for the furtherance of basketball and the financial needs of teams in the Greater Victoria area.

You don't have to know anything about basketball to enjoy the Trotters. If you do like the sport your education will only be furthered in that regard.

If they are not the best aggregation ever put together, the evidence is all wrong. True, the unit to show here is only one of three touring the country—even the world—but it's all first class.

The Trotters have, since their inception, a contrasting story to tell. They have played in hay lofts and before 75,000 at Berlin's Olympic Stadium. They've thrilled thousands with the zany antics, other thousands with their brilliant ability.

Abe Saperstein, who now occupies the role of a world-wide United States diplomat with the Trotters as his aides, first got the idea of a touring club when he was handling odd jobs around negro playgrounds in Chicago.

The theme was logical. There was really no place of league for the fellows to play in, so Abe took them on the road. The name "Harlem" came from the fact that Saperstein wanted people to know they were negroes; "Globetrotters" because they'd been around.

Discrimination an Exception Now

It was a Model T beginning for the club. Saperstein drove the car, coached and managed the team, was trainer, secretary and father confessor, all rolled into one. He even stepped in and played at times.

It was a penny parade at the start, $10 being a good gate in some whistle stops, and when the Trotters commenced knocking the stuffing out of every team they met, dates got tougher to get. That's when the slapstick was born. A mixture of basketball and comedy pleased the customers more.

Race discrimination hit the team often (Abe once said the players used to pack razors in their socks, just in case). The Trotters got what accommodation they could. Today discrimination is the exception where it once was the rule.

The Trotters had their modest and meagre beginning in 1926 and it wasn't really until 1940 that they hit the broadwalk to fame.

Called in as fill-in for a tournament in Chicago when a fourth team was needed, the Trotters took the whole kaboodle. And they did it by coming from behind a 29-21 count with five minutes to play to win 31-29.

The Pope Was Highly Impressed, Too

Today they're true ambassadors of good will. Their salaries range from $400 a month to the tops of $25,000 a year the fabulous Goose Tatum gets for his shennanigans.

It's a $2,000,000 enterprise now for Saperstein and a far cry from the sleazy hotels of the '30s.

Personally, we've seen the Trotters at their zaniest and also their best. We saw them lose to Victoria Dominos here in Victoria, the night Norm Baker ran wild for 32 points. And we saw them in Frisco against the College All-Stars two years ago.

As Pope Pius said: "My, how clever these men are!" Certainly with the Trotters, Saperstein has proved his point.

Sports is the greatest common denominator of all. Basketball fan or not, you shouldn't miss 'em. You'll be doing yourself, and basketball, a favor.

Eilers Seek 'Angel' For Pan-Am Games

VANCOUVER (CP).— Vancouver Eilers, four times ladies' Canadian basketball champions, are seeking some "angel" to help them get to Mexico City for the Pan-American Games.

Eilers, chosen to represent Canada in basketball in the games, opening March 12, must raise about $3,500 by January 31 to make the trip.

"We know we can't raise the whole sum," coach Gordie McDonald said Friday, "but we're hoping that when we've done all we can, some angel will step in to supply the balance."

The Canadian Amateur Athletic Union made no provision for the Pan-American Games in this year's budget.

RULE HURTS

NHL Goalies Find Chores Get Tougher

By The Canadian Press

Strict enforcement of the laws is to the benefit of society, it says here, but to at least a couple of members of the National Hockey League goaltenders' society this is not the case.

"Take Lorne 'Gump' Worsley, of New York Rangers, for instance. He's already the busiest net-minder in the league, what with opposing forwards drifting through the Ranger defense to pepper as many as 50 shots at him during a game. And he figures to be even busier as a result of a recent order by referee-in-chief Carl Voss for stricter enforcement of a rule prohibiting players other than the goalkeeper from falling on the puck.

GADSBY SPECIALTY

Blocking shots by falling in front of them is a specialty of Ranger defenseman Bill Gadsby, one of the Blue Shirts' best. Now he risks a penalty anytime the referee figures he fell on the puck rather than in front of it.

Then look at Toronto Maple Leafs' Harry Lumley, last year the best in the business. His defense is said to be letting down since the NHL told its officials to crack down on the clutch-and-grab hockey boys.

Baz O'Meara of the Montreal Star wrote after Thursday night's game there between Leafs and Canadiens: "While the invading Leafs worked hard up front, their defense collapsed when deprived of the most effective weapon in their arsenal, the grab and boarding technique, that has served them so well for so long."

BE BUSY BOY

All of which apparently goes to say Lumley will be a busy boy tonight when Leafs take on Detroit Red Wings.

Worsley, too, is likely to be active tonight when Rangers move to Boston to take on the high-flying Bruins, who have lost only three of their last 11 games.

Chicago Black Hawk goalie Ray Frederick, who is expected to fill in again tonight for ailing Al Rollins, may also look forward to much puck-blocking when the cellar-dwellers meet Canadiens at Montreal.

CAGE FINAL TONIGHT

Totems Meet Normal School

Victoria High School Totems earned the right to contest the inter-collegiate basketball championship and Victoria Daily Times Trophy after downing Royal Roads, 55-41, at the Vic High gym Friday night.

Normal School, which won the tourney two years ago, took an easy 65-33 victory over Victoria College Vikings. The teachers meet the Totems in the featured game tonight at 8:30.

Deciding third and fourth places in the two-day tournament, Royal Roads plays Vikings for the Hi-Y trophy in the opening game at 7:30.

A smart passing attack enabled Normal School to pick up an early 14-4 lead in the first quarter and extend it to 32-14 at half time. The teachers, holding the edge throughout the game, rolled to a 51-23 score in the third quarter and tallied 15 points to the Vikings' 10 in the final quarter.

Al Snowsell and Dave Worthy topped the winners with 12 and 11 points, respectively, while Gary Corbett scored 10 points for the losers.

CADETS RALLY

In a tighter contest that had both teams struggling all the way, Totems lead 31-19 at half-time. The cadets were only five points behind the winners in the quarter but were unable to catch up in the fourth as the defending champions finished 14 points ahead.

Tom English scored 14 points for the Totems while Ron Binnie and Tim Ryley sparked the losers with 10.

Three judges will choose an all-star team and select the most valuable player following tonight's games.

SWEDISH WIN

TOKYO (AP).—The Grasshoppers from Zurich, Switzerland, whipped the all-Japan soccer team, 7-1, in a one-sided duel at Korakuen Stadium today.

B.C. TEAM MAY ENTER GRASS HOCKEY TOURNEY

VANCOUVER (CP).—A Canadian women's field hockey team will compete in a world championship tournament in Australia next year if one or more fairly godmothers are found.

Mrs. Pat Chapman, president of the Greater Vancouver Women's Grass Hockey League, says the group, comprising players from Vancouver and Victoria, is seeking between $10,000 and $15,000 for the trip.

Vancouver now has 500 active women hockey players with 44 teams in the Inter-High School League and seven in the Greater Vancouver circuit.

The tournament team has until the end of January to advise conference headquarters whether it will be able to enter the meet.

Cougars Snarling At Tormmentors

Whip Stamps; Canucks Down Royals

Victoria 6, Calgary 2
Vancouver 5, Westminster 2

Victoria Cougars, surrounded by assassins, took care of two enemies with one fell swoop Friday night.

Turning in a top-notch defensive game, the fourth-place Victoria Cougars polished off third-place Calgary Stampede to slice two points off the Stamp lead, and at the same time remained eight points in front of the ambitious Vancouver Canucks, who whipped New Westminster Royals, 5-2.

The victory helped to solidify Victoria's fourth-place standing at a time when that position appeared to be in danger of the high-flying, fifth-place Vancouver club.

The same opportunities are at hand tonight, with Cougars meeting Edmonton Flyers in the last game of their prairie junket, Calgary moving on to the home of the Saskatoon Quakers and Vancouver again meeting New Westminster.

REAY PLAYMAKER

Cougars played it close to the vest in the first period, jumping into a 1-0 lead when Billy Reay set Colin Kilburn up for the first goal at 15:54.

Reay engineered the second goal of the game, Doug Anderson scoring at 8:30 of the second and the Cougars turned it into a rout with three more second-period goals. Andy Heberton, Alex Kuzma and Doug Macauley scored as Cougars upped their edge to 5-0 at the end of the second.

Goalie Marcel Pelletier was working on a shutout, but his plans were spoiled in the third period when Gerry Couture and Fred Hucul scored. Pelletier himself appearing to pull the puck into the net on Hucul's freakish counter. Mark Marquess finished off the Cougars' scoring jar with his club's only third-period goal.

The victory gave the Cougars their third point out of six on the road trip and broke off an unwanted streak that had seen them winless in five games.

BIG CROWD

A crowd of 5,000, perhaps hoping to see the war of words between Vancouver and New Westminster develop into something more tangible, packed Vancouver Forum. But in spite of the fact that New Westminster has charged Vancouver defenseman Harry Dick with liberally injuring a Royal player, there was no evidence of the bitter feelings during the game.

The clubs were tied, 1-1 after the first period but Vancouver rolled into a 4-2 lead after the second hour.

Fred Brown scored twice for Canucks, Hugh Barlow, Mid Houghton and Johnny Reeve adding single goals. New Westminster's goals were scored by Doug Adam and Valerie Fonteyn, picked up from the Kelowna Packers.

APOLOGY TO DICK DEMANDED

Canucks Threaten MacKenzie With Suit

VANCOUVER (BUP).—A writ for defamation of character will be issued against Ken MacKenzie unless the owner of the New Westminster Royals apologizes to Vancouver Canucks' defenseman Harry Dick, a spokesman for the Vancouver club said today.

MacKenzie said in press and radio reports that Dick was "the dirtiest player I've ever seen, and a dirty coward."

The owner of the Western Hockey League team was referring to a mid-clash between Dick and New Westminster's Jim Zarie, in which Zarie suffered a serious knee injury.

"In accusing Dick of a deliberate attempt to injure Jim Zarie," Coley Hall said, "MacKenzie is criticizing the refereeing, in an offhand manner. We have a league rule against that which carries an automatic $200 fine, and I'm going to ask (A) Leader (president of the WHL) for his interpretation of MacKenzie's statements."

"I've been called a lot of things in my years in hockey," Dick said last night, "but never a coward."

MacKenzie said "I have no apology to make. Dick will wait a long time before I make any retraction of what I've said."

If the writ is issued, Hall said he would "gladly pay all the bills."

LEONARD SECOND AT SAN DIEGO

(Thunder) Bolt Roars Again

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UP).—With his famed explosive temperament well under control, Tommy (Thunder) Bolt of Houston, Tex., teed off in the third round of the $15,000 San Diego Open golf tournament in the act of making a runaway race of what should have been a nip-and-tuck battle.

Bolt is supposed to be no better than the other touring stars, but right now he is four strokes ahead of the other 61 professionals who qualified for the final 36 holes. He has a 131 total and holds that lead over defending champion Gene Littler and little Stan Leonard, the Canadian PGA champion from Vancouver, B.C., who have 135.

These two men are just about the only ones in the field in contention. The next closest score is a 138—seven strokes back of Bolt—and that total is shared by four men.

Littler and Leonard had to fire great six-under-par 66s Friday to stay in contention. Bolt had a 67 to go with his first-round 64.

The men with the 138 totals are Doug Ford and Jackie Burke of Kiamiesha Lake, N.Y.; Bud Hoscher, the promising young star from Santa Monica, Calif., and Paul McGuire, Wichita, Kan.

Leonard set a course record on the back nine with a 30, which included five birdies and an eagle. The old record was 33. "I had a bit of luck," said Leonard.

Wilson Stays in U.S.

SAN FRANCISCO (UP).—

End Billy Wilson, who recently turned down a fat offer to jump to Canadian football, has signed his 1955 contract with the San Francisco 49ers with a reported "substantial" pay raise.

A Week's Work

By DENNY BOYD

Do you ever wonder why a multi-million dollar sports enterprise like the Harlem Globetrotters continues to bother with a basketball peanut like Victoria?

In a position where he can count his money with a pitchfork and bank it in a vault, promoter Abe Saperstein still sends a Globetrotter team to Victoria every year. This, in spite of the fact that Victoria is about as interested in basketball as the Kremlin.

In all probability the Trotters will draw a large crowd Monday night at Memorial Arena, just because they are the Trotters. But there are other places they could go, by-passing Victoria, and make more money.

Why, then, does Saperstein keep sending his teams here, at a financial risk? Because Saperstein remembers. He remembers the old days, the mid-30s, when the green stuff wasn't so thick and the Globetrotter name had not become a synonym for basketball.

In those days, Abe was a short, fat man with twinkling eyes, a shrewd mind and an unrelenting faith that in the Harlem Globetrotters he had the key to success. Abe and his colored troupe were not welcome in all parts of their own country. In the Southern cracker states, they met racial hatred at its rawest and they often had to flee from the open hostility. If race-conscious hotels and restaurants refused to cater to the players, Abe and his performers ate and slept in their rickety old Cadillac bus.

Victoria was one of the first Canadian towns the Trotters played and they received nothing but the glad hand here. This was in the days of the Blue Ribbons, when basketball was in its heyday. The Trotters were looked upon only as masterful basketball players, not as subversives who were getting out of line, as was the opinion in many parts of their own country.

Doors in Victoria were always open to the Trotters, and Abe remembers this when he lines up the Trotters' book-ings every year.

Lloyd Baker, the Times city editor, is one who remembers the early days of the Trotters. At that time Baker was a wet-behind-the-ears cub reporter and his juiciest assignment

Poodle Dog Cafe for a late bowl of soup. "Pete," Abe would say, "this is going to be big some day. I'm going to hit the top with the Globetrotters. I'll crack the big time."

Now, Abe has cracked the big time. But he is still essentially a humble man and he remembers from whom and where the good treatment came in the lean years. Now he is paying back his old friends, Victoria's turn comes Monday.

Pete Sallaway was sports editor of our paper then and he became a close personal friend of Saperstein. Pete describes Abe thusly: "He was a wise business man. He built up tremendous faith among the Negro race and I think it was Abe who made it possible for Negroes to enter every sport. The players trusted him and he ruled them fairly but with an iron hand."

Pete best remembers the nights after games when he and Abe would drop into the of Kings, chapter 18, verse 34. Cowdrey, a religious young fellow among other things, looked up the pertinent verse, which said: "And he said 'do it the second time.' And he said 'do it the third time.' And they did it the third."

The advice was followed to the letter as Cowdrey promptly added a second century, or 100 runs, in the same game. He scored his third in the match following in which England took a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five test series.

BORN TO CRICKET
Colin Cowdrey is one cricketer who has successfully survived the boy wonder stage, blossoming into hard-hitting maturity on the current Australian tour. He was just a twirl of a lad when his father, a Bangalore tea planter who noted on cricket, started bending him toward fame.

At five, he was rarely without bat or ball, practising on a pitch hacked from the Indian jungle. He had been named carefully so that his initials coincided with those of the Marylebone Cricket Club, the rules-making body better known as the MCC.

He was a bright, though plump, schoolboy star at 13 in batting and bowling. He played for Kent county at 17, and received his permanent team position there in 1951. He made the Oxford team his first year and was just 22 last Christmas Eve.

His trip to Australia was tinged with ironic tragedy. A few days before he landed to start the tour that his father had always dreamed of him making, he was informed that Cowdrey Sr. had died.

Basilio Sets Sights On Saxton's Crown

By JACK CUDDY
United Press Sports Writer
SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UP)

—Fiery Carmen Basilio set his sights today on two world titles, welterweight and middleweight, as a result of his convincing victory over 157-pound Peter Mueller of Germany.

"I'm sure last night's win clinched a shot at Johnny Saxton's welterweight titles, said the raw-boned, hatchet-faced onlooker from nearby Canastota, N.Y., "and after I beat Saxton, I want Bobo Olson." Olson is the middleweight ruler.

Managing director Harry Markson of the International Boxing Club said, "We hope to close this week a Basilio-Saxton bout for April 1 at Syracuse or New York. Friday night's bout should be Carmen's last until he meets Saxton."

Middleweight Mueller attributed last night's defeat on a lopsided decision to his being out of form because of too much fighting since he came to the United States in November.

Stocky Peter suffered a technical knockdown, several spells of graginess, a badly gashed left brow and a rude shattering of his hopes for a middleweight title shot when he became the target of Basilio's left hooks before a turn-away crowd of $3,680 (paid) in the Syracuse Memorial auditorium.

Because of consecutive American victories over Ralph (Tiger) Jones, Joe Miceli and Ernie Durando, he could have earned consideration as contender had he beaten Basilio, the 3-1 favorite.

Esquimalt Students Turn Teachers

Out of the classroom and on the basketball floor, the Esquimalt High School Dockers have little respect for school teachers.

The Dockers, Esquimalt's senior boys' rep team, ran into the Pedigree Friday night, the team formed from local school teachers. The students got all the best of this particular session, carving out a 56-46 victory over the chalk-wielders.

Pedigree held a 23-22 lead at halftime but the Dockers pulled up their socks in the second half to pile up their 10-point margin of victory.

Al Webb was the big scoring gun for Dockers, hooping 16 points, while Chuck Bennett threw in another 13. Tops for the teachers was Bob McConkey with 14.

First game of the Inter-High Junior League was played as a preliminary, Esquimalt downing Mount Douglas Juniors, 41-18.

ART GOODER... curling champ to defend honors.

Art Gooder to Defend Curling Championship

The defending champion will risk his honors in the third annual Victoria Curling Club bonspiel.

Art Gooder of Vancouver, a triple winner last year, tops the early list of entries for this year's events scheduled to open at the Victoria Club January 31.

Gooder last year captured the Birks Grand Aggregate Award, the Times Trophy, and the Colman challenge event, losing only one match.

Tony Gutowski, Victoria's representative rink in the B.C. Consols playdowns, has entered his championship unit. Gutowski last year won the Ker & Stephenson Trophy. Dick Piper of Saskatchewan has indicated he personally will not be competing, but that other members of his T. Eaton championship rink will enter this year's competition.

Ernie Gordon will likely be back with his HBC trophy winning rink, while Dick Topping of Oliver, Dominion Hotel Trophy winner last year, has not yet indicated his pleasure.

Twenty entries have been received to date with local rinks being outnumbered 12-8. However, bonspiel officials expect things to pick up in the next few days.

Club secretary Fred Madden has announced that temporary bleachers will be constructed to accommodate spectators.

The bonspiel dinner will be held Wednesday, Feb. 2, with the ladies of the club catering for the event.

Entries close Jan. 28 and local rinks are requested to file entry as soon as possible.

Eastern Stars Take Junior Skate Titles
TORONTO (BUP)—East-West rivalry was never hotter today as Prairie pirouettiers attempted to make up for the runaway victories scored by Wanda Beasley and Don Jackson in the junior events at the Canadian figure skating championships.

Sonia Currie and Joan Shipman of Calgary, moved into the senior ladies' final after the clear-cut victories of Easterners decided the two junior events.

Miss Beasley, a 19-year-old Toronto miss who hadn't skated competitively for two years, won the junior crown.

Master Jackson, a 14-year-old edition of Dick Button, kept the crowd of 2,000 agog as he streaked through salchows, lutes, flying stipfles and other variations for the junior men's crown.

Robert Paul, of Toronto, finished second, and Hugh Smith, of Oshawa, third.

Wanda Beasley easily outdistanced three challengers from Calgary as she swept to the title. Dianna Williams, Mar-

MOSCOW (CP)—Komsomol Prava, newspaper of the Communist Youth League, sees significance in the fact that Canada's entry in the world hockey championships next month will travel to Europe by airplane.

"Never in the history of hockey will there be such strong competition," Komsomol Prava says.

"It is characteristic that the Canadian team will come to Europe by plane instead of by ship, as they did previously. The Canadians want to conserve their strength. Therefore they also will play only four exhibition games in Europe..."

Wives on Picket Line

About 75 wives of strikers at the Ford of Canada plant at Windsor have joined their husbands on the picket line. The strike of members of the United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL), started more than 100 days ago. It has been the longest strike in the plant's history. Meetings aimed at settlement have produced no success so far. (CP Photo.)

Philanthropist Puzzles Police

Mystery Man in Chicago Rewards Those Who Believe in Almighty

CHICAGO (UP)—A street corner "phantom philanthropist" today apparently had even skeptical police believing that he really does "give away something for nothing."

The phantom struck for the third time Friday, walking up to a youth on a suburban street corner and handing him $250, making a total of $650 he has given away.

The startled youth, Nathaniel Patterson, 22, took the money to police who simply checked that it was genuine and not stolen and returned it to Patterson.

The police were not so easily convinced a week ago when the phantom pressed $300 into the hand of his first beneficiary, hitchhiker Cecil Mayes, 22, of Evergreen, N.C.

They held Mayes, an ex-airman on his way to Thorp, Wis., for four days, gave him two lie detector tests and made him appear in court before admitting belief in his story.

MAN ABOUT 40 Mayes had told police he was thumbing a ride at the outskirts of the city when a neatly dressed man between 35 and 40 drove up.

The man asked if he had faith in God and practiced his religion, Mayes said. He also asked if Mayes "could use some money."

When Mayes answered "yes" to all three questions, the man pressed six new $50 bills into his hand and drove off, saying "keep faith in God."

Patterson told a similar story, and his description of the man tallied with Mayes', and with that of the third beneficiary of the phantom, Nasco Stone, 26.

"Do you believe in God?" Patterson quoted the Phantom as saying.

"Yes, I do," Patterson said he replied.

With that the Phantom shoved five $50 bills—again brand new—into his hand, Patterson said.

DROVE AWAY "By the time I could figure out what happened he drove off in a car," the nonplussed youth told police.

He offered to take a lie detector test, but after their experience with Mayes, the police politely said that wouldn't be necessary.

Stone, a carpenter, was repairing a door Thursday when the mystery man approached him and said:

"I guess it must take a lot of money to keep these old buildings in shape."

"Guess so," Stone shrugged.

The Phantom then handed him $100. This time it was five $20 bills, again brand new.

Stone said the man drove off in the same kind of late model sedan described by Mayes and Patterson.

While the city waited for the Phantom to appear again, finally convinced police finally summoned his friends and asked if they wanted to give away his money.

It was all right with Mayes, Stone and Patterson.

PIERRE KNOWS HOW

800 Million Frenchmen Cheat Tax Collectors

PARIS (UP)—Pierre Poudjade cheats on his taxes and it has made him a national hero.

The law says the handsome 34-year-old Poudjade should be in the Bastille. Instead he heads a movement of 800,000 Frenchmen and has traveled 45,000 miles in the past year teaching his creed—don't pay.

Poudjade will carry his revolution to the capital Monday when he addresses five mass meetings in Paris expected to draw crowds of between 300,000 and 500,000.

That is something like 50 times the number of collectors in all France so it is understandable if the finance ministry looks the other way.

Cheating on taxes is, of course, nothing new in France. Artifices to that end are something of a national pastime. But never before has a Frenchman taken such a direct course as Poudjade.

When on a July day in 1953, he got word tax collectors were coming again to check books, Poudjade summoned his friends and soon the entire village had massed around his shop. They refused to let the collectors get near the store.

The movement snowballed. Tax men in small towns throughout the department found themselves accosted by surly mobs. Sometimes they were roughed up but generally they were allowed to leave unharmed but empty-handed.

QUOTES AND NOTES:

The Saanich Peninsula and Gulf Islands Review reports that a Department of Agriculture representative plans a talk on how to organize a children's goat club.

This deserves our earnest support. We should all be in favor of something for the kids.

The erudite business editor of this newspaper states: "If you were to take a lot of pennies and stack them one atop the other until they reached eight and three-quarters miles into the sky, you'd have the amount of money fed into Victoria parking meters last year."

A news item reports: "One man was injured in three city accidents."

Life gets tedious, don't it?

"Sitting and arising gracefully takes practice, but once you've learned how it's done you will never appear old or awkward in this situation," says a beauty and personality consultant. I am willing to devote hours of practice to the art of sitting. But I'll leave arising to the younger generation.

"B.C. PAYS $6 MILLION FOR BRIDGE" . . . headline. And I always thought you could lose much more playing poker.

News report from Honolulu says there's opposition to a new type of calendar because it would eliminate New Year's Day and have four Fridays the thirteenth.

Hangover Harry says he'd gladly take on four unlucky Fridays to get rid of the day after New Year's Eve.

Two Victoria men are among a group of 42 RCN volunteers who will leave Montreal Monday for submarine training in England.

They are CPO J. Francis Meredith, 26, 2378 Cranmore Road, and PO Graham A. McKay, 35, Belmont Park.

Monday's draft will be the third to leave for training at HMS Dolphin, the RCN submarine training base near Portsmouth.

Howard Minnie, 717 Discovery Street, was fined a total of $20.

DROODLES

This Doodle illustrates only one of the many services instituted by drug stores. No modern apothecary is complete without a used car counter, a TV repair department and a bulldozer parts section. We can eat an eight-course dinner at the fountain and our children can educate themselves by looking at the covers of the Mickey Spillane books in the drug store library. An today's pharmacist must not only be able to decipher a doctor's prescription; he must know exactly how much mayonnaise he can put in the chicken salad without spoiling the taste of the tuna fish. If things get worse we'll soon be forced to buy our aspirins and phenobarbital from hardware stores.

Delegates to International Woodworkers of America District No. 1 convention in Vancouver, Feb. 14-17, will meet in CCL headquarters, 715 Johnson, at 10 a.m. next Saturday.

Tankers will be converted to self-dumping log barges for use by Island Tug in B.C. waters. Lead tug is Island Sovereign, followed by Sudbury, with Lloyd B. Gore on starboard side of tow.

CHISHOLM TELLS STUDENTS:

Rigid Religionists Block Road to Truth

Rigid religious doctrine that cannot be adapted to fit own definition of faith and rationality, and argued with doctor's opinion that children should be taught other religions, said Dr. Brock Chisholm today was reported as saying.

The world-famed doctor, centre of a religious controversy here on the rationality of religion, was quoted in this effect in The Martlet, newspaper of Victoria College.

He said many great advances towards truth by such great men as Galileo, Darwin, Huxley and others in various fields "have been made against doctrinal certainties still held by some Christian groups."

Further: "Though apparently Christ placed no strictures on the free search for knowledge, many Christian orthodoxies do."

He made his comments in an article by student Walter McLean, son of Presbyterian Church moderator, Rev. Dr. J. L. W. McLean, in a review of religious outlooks on the campus.

Friday, Dr. Chisholm created a stir when he said it was not possible to examine the validity of a faith by a rational approach because they "are in different fields."

And he added that children should be taught existence of a variety of religions so they could better understand how people all over the world behave.

Dean Beattie of Christ Church Cathedral said Dr. Chisholm based his views on his own definition of faith and rationality, and argued with doctor's opinion that children should be taught other religions, said Dr. Brock Chisholm today was reported as saying.

$30,000 Expansion For Esquimalt Plant

Standard Enlarges Viewfield Factory

By DICK FREEMAN

Industrial development is further indicated in Esquimalt by issuance of a building permit at Municipal Hall for a $30,000 addition to the Standard Furniture Company's manufacturing and storage warehouse on Viewfield Road.

Plans for the proposed work were prepared by Wade, Stockill and Armour and the general contract has been placed with George H. Wheaton Ltd.

The building, 84 by 130 feet, will be of concrete and concrete block construction with Wilson joists specified to carry the roof.

The preliminary construction work is already under way. Building Inspector William Edgington, in announcing the new project, points to the important development of the Viewfield industrial area in Esquimalt.

The $250,000 Malkin's warehouse and distributing centre and Weston's bakeries are notable instances of this development.

"New residence permits are up since the beginning of the year," said Mr. Edgington.

He spoke of the new subdivisions and the sewer and road work which have been opened up, particularly the Greenwood Avenue section.

Most of these properties have been taken up. Inquiries are being made all over the Esquimalt area for suitable sites for new homes.

Said Mr. Edgington: "The municipality could have sold 20 or more housing properties this month if suitable sites had been available." The need, he indicated, was more serviced subdivisions.

Jobless Jump Blamed on Shipyard

Total Up 206 But Still Below 1954

Shipyard layoffs this week were partly responsible for a jump of 206 in local unemployment figures over last week, C. A. Mudge, National Employment Office manager, said today.

However, Victoria had 600 fewer unemployed workers this week than were registered in the same week a year ago, said the manager.

Male applicants for unemployment insurance benefits increased "moderately" due in part to layoffs in one shipyard.

Many of the applicants for unemployment benefits were from outside Victoria, the manager's report said, and effect of layoffs at one shipyard was partially offset by hiring at another yard.

Indications point toward an early start on spring construction projects if favorable weather continues, said Mr. Mudge.

Women seeking work increased by 98 during the week, with vacancies remaining at a fairly consistent level and demand largely in the clerical group, particularly stenography.

The present time is suitable for referring female applicants to almost any occupation, but openings for high school graduates and domestics to "live-in" are few.

Employers would be well advised to place orders for anticipated work while a choice of applicants is available, said the manager.

MAX LOHBRUNNER seen his otters?

SEA SAGA

Vancouver Can't Hold Max's Otters

BY HUMPHRY DAVY

An amazing story of three tame sea otters which escaped from Stanley Park Zoo at Vancouver and swam home to their "playground" in Victoria's Inner Harbor was told today.

Max Lohbrunner, veteran Victoria fisherman who lives aboard his boat, the "Mell" berthed near the city garbage wharf, recounted the tale in the hope some light may be thrown on the disappearance of his unusual pets a short time ago.

"Bunny," "Fanny" and "Maggie"—so called by Mr. Lohbrunner—were given to the Vancouver Zoo in November, 1953. The zoo at the time had been unable to trap live otters and had requested the fisherman to supply them with a few animals.

Mr. Lohbrunner decided to loan them his three pets on the understanding they would be returned to him when the zoo found replacements. Alan Best, in charge of the zoo, agreed to the plan.

"I hated to see them go," said Max. "They ran about my boat like my pet cats. I fed them every day and they never failed to turn up and chat with me."

It wasn't long after, Max related, that he received a telegram from Vancouver stating that the otters had escaped, but it was hoped that they would be recaptured.

Celebration Parade Dare Accepted by CC

Victoria Chamber of Commerce has accepted the challenge of the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association to stage the street parade in connection with this year's May 24 celebration.

Chamber directors showed some hesitancy with regard to undertaking the project when the matter came before them at a meeting Friday in the Empress Hotel. After nearly half an hour's discussion, however, they voted in favor.

The Celebrations Association called on the chamber to organize this year's parade because of criticism levelled by some chamber members against last year's affair.

"We're very much on the spot," ex-president George Wheaton observed.

Motion to go ahead with the proposal was made by Ald. Donald Smith, chairman of the civic affairs group, and seconded by Tom Denny.

SATURDAY SELECTED

Directors accepted the recommendation that this year's parade be staged on Saturday, May 21, a day when stores will be open. Mr. Denny advocated this since he felt merchants, if they were expected to contribute to the parade, needed some incentive.

E. W. Arnott saw one drawback.

"I doubt if you will get the same turn-out on a Saturday as you would on the actual holiday when parents will be with their families," he said.

Conway Parrott said a Saturday parade staged in Portland had drawn bigger crowds than had holiday parades and that merchants had reaped considerable benefit.

AVM Atherly laughed and cut the Canadian officer short with: "I know all about that; I sent the wire."

HEADLINES OF THE WEEK of interest to Women

Victoria Daily Times SATURDAY, JAN. 22, 1935 15

Taking precedence on next week's calendar is the opening of the Legislature on Tuesday afternoon, followed by a reception in the Crystal Ballroom at the Empress Hotel ... and the State Dinner and State Ball at Government House the same evening. Many other teas, dinners and luncheons are arranged during the days of the session to honor the wife of the Premier of the province and the wives of cabinet ministers and out-of-town members of the Legislature.

BILL HALKETT

Included in the Legislative social circle are Mrs. Robert Bonner, wife of the Attorney-General of British Columbia, centre; Mrs. Ralph Kiernan, wife of the Minister of Agriculture, left, and Mrs. R. E. Sommers, wife of the Minister of Lands and Forests. Others not pictured are Mrs. Eric Martin, Mrs. P. A. Gagliardi, Mrs. Lyle Wicks and Mrs. Thomas Irwin, wives of the Ministers of Health and Welfare, Public Works, Labor and the Speaker of the House.

During the better part of the year, Mrs. Lydia Arsens, British Columbia's lone woman member of the Legislative Assembly, finds a sunny corner of her home the most convenient spot for an office.

Lone Woman Member Prepares for Session

Mrs. Lydia Arsens, Victoria M.L.A. likes the corner of her living room she has taken over as an office. She spreads out her correspondence, her books, her papers and her typewriter on a convenient table, close to a window. And for several hours each day, she works at this table, answering letters and studying the many problems she confronts in her daily contacts with people and in the affairs of government.

Just before the Legislative Assembly convenes however, Mrs. Arsens changes her office from the sunny corner in her own home to the Parliament Buildings.

"It wouldn't be very convenient to work from home in the crowded days of the session," she points out.

The office allotted to her in the Parliament Buildings is only two doors away from the government caucus room, close to the Legislative Chamber. There is room for a desk, a filing cabinet, several chairs for visitors who often crowd the little office. The long curtains in royal blue velvet add warmth and dignity to this "workshop," as Mrs. Arsens calls it.

This is Mrs. Arsens third session of the Legislature ... she was elected to office in the summer of 1933 ... and she is looking forward to it with an earnest desire to present the woman's angle with a clear and considered approach.

A former Alberta school teacher, Mrs. Arsens organized the first rural P.T.A.'s in that province. She is trained in merchandising, staff management and personnel work, and is a graduate of the Dale Carnegie and International Institutes.

Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, second from left, as wife of the Premier of British Columbia, will take a leading part in social functions that occur during the session of the Legislature. Mrs. Wesley Black, wife of the Provincial Secretary and Minister of Municipal Affairs; Mrs. Ralph Chetwynd, wife of the Minister of Trade and Industry and Mrs. Ray Williston, wife of the Minister of Education, left to right, will also take prominent places at teas, dinners and luncheons on the session's social calendar.

Brunette Dianne Tippet Is Bride As Vows Exchanged at First United

Tall and slender in diaphanous white, brunette Dianne Georgia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Tippet, 3210 Wetherby Road, entered First United Church, Friday evening, on her father's arm to become the bride of George Ferguson Bridges, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Bridges, 1742 Albert Avenue.

Masses of flowers decorated the church and dainty white dillies centred with orange blossoms and tied with white ribbon streamers marked the guest pews. Rev. Moler A. J. Waters performed the ceremony and organist was Mrs. Roberto Wood. A vocal solo, "Because," was sung by J. Roberto Wood during the ceremony.

The full-length bridal gown was of satin with a misting of bouffant net overskirt and a lace bodice, the neckline of which was trimmed with seed pearls and silver beads. Long, narrow sleeves ended in graceful points over the wrists. A tiara of pearls and silver beads held her full-length net veil which was trimmed with French embroidery. Her flowers were a cascade of red roses and white carnations with garlands of ivy.

Mrs. Pearl Emily Bryant attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a full-length gown of mauve net over taffeta, the satin bolero being embroidered in a delicate design. Miss Eileen Rafter, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid and had chosen a formal gown of pink net over taffeta, the skirt having lace inserts. It was topped with a tiny bolero.

Junior bridesmaid was Miss Marie W.

Tippet, sister of the bride, who wore Nile green taffeta in a full-skirted model trimmed with green net. All attendants had matching net tiaras and gloves and carried cascade bouquets to tone with their gowns, garlanded with ivy.

Edward B. Whyte, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man, and ushers were Ray Parker and Ernie Hills.

Loughheed's Banquet Club was scene of a reception, at which Mrs. Tippet assisted in receiving in a pale green taffeta dress with yellow rose corsage, and Mrs. Bridges in a light grey two-piece wool dress with red rose corsage.

Flowers decorated the hall, and a three-tier cake, made by the bride's father, and topped with a miniature bride and groom and swans, graced the supper table.

A toast to the bride was proposed by her uncle, W. Wheeler, and dancing was enjoyed to piano music of Mrs. M. Graves.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. W. Wheeler, Parksville; Mr. and Mrs. G. Rafter and family, Mr. and Mrs. J. Rowan and family, Mr. and Mrs. D. Wilson, Mrs. A. Watchhorn and Mr. T. Wheeler and family, all of Nanaimo; Mr. and Mrs. S. Walmsley, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. R. Cusson, Lantzville, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Cruickshank of Centralia, Wash.

For a honeymoon Up-Island, Mrs. Bridges donned a two-tone grey suit and matching shoes, red hat and accessories and corsage of red roses. The newly-wed pair will make their home at 972 Heywood Avenue.

This week, Mrs. Arsens moved her papers and her typewriter down to the Parliament Buildings where she is allotted a small office, close to the government caucus room, for the days of the session.

Chinese Food in Tins For Crowd or You Alone

By PENNY SAVER

Let's have some Chinese food. . . I just love it! . . . Have you tried the canned type? You can buy all the wonderfully delicious dishes and heat them at home. How about some beef chop suey? The large family sized tin, weighing three pounds, costs only $3.29. Served with boiled or fried rice, it's simply marvelous.

Or would you like to sample some chow mein? Either with or without meat, take your choice. The meatless chow mein costs 95 cents for the large three-pound tin. If you wish, you can add your own meat, or eat it as is. It's very good either way. Chicken chow mein costs only 59 cents for a one-pound tin. There are several good-sized servings in one of these tins, too!

I saw a combination pack that looks awfully good. A tin of beef chop suey and a tin of chow mein noodles. . . both for 75 cents. Can't you just taste the wonderful Oriental flavor of it now? For those of you with a yen for chop suey vegetables, there's a 20-ounce tin for 39 cents. Simply add your favorite noodles and meat on the side, and there's a meal fit for a king. . . I mean, a mandarin!

There's "just-for-one" tins of this Chinese food, too, for the person who lives alone. A tin of chop suey with meat costs only 29 cents. And there's a good plate full for you.

While roaming about, I saw a muffin basket that I thought you'd like. It was made of a soft weave straw, stained red or green. Stiff liner makes the sectional divider for the inside, and you could put a dozen muffins or butter buns inside with no difficulty. The crisp linen covers them just enough to keep the buns hot. . . the basket's only 99 cents. Yes, they're on sale. So get one now, while they last.

For those of you who were so interested in the iron-on patches I've another "iron-on" for you. For only 35 cents you can buy two and one-third yards of hemming tape.

You simply iron the tape on where you want it. . . it won't come off with laundering or dry cleaning. If you hate to put up hems as much as I do, this will be a great saving of time and energy for you. You can darn socks this way, too. Small, medium or large patches to fit the size of the hole. In various colors, they cost only 35 cents a package. Each package contains about 24 patches. . . and, like the other items mentioned, are washable and won't come off unless you want them to.

Going to Work Best Cure for Loneliness

By ELIZABETH HURLOCK, PhD

Hurlock

A person who has been accustomed to having a regular schedule of activities is likely to find time hanging heavily on her hands if she has nothing definite to do. A woman writes: (Q)—"I have worked a good many years but I am not working because I had an operation four years ago. It seems that all of my friends, except a few who are busy with their families, go to work. I would love to meet some new friends, join some club, or help out on something. My husband works very long hours and the days are so long and I am so lonely. Have you any suggestion to help me?" (A)—"If you enjoyed your work and were associated with congenial people, why not consider the possibility of going back to it? Talk to your doctor and see if he thinks your health would permit you to take a job now. It has been four years since your operation and you should be completely over the effects of it, unless you had some complications. It would be wise to start out with a part-time job until you saw how you felt and if the job, plus your home duties, were too much for you. Having been accustomed to working definite hours, you would certainly find a job the real solution to your problem of loneliness.

If, however, the doctor feels it would be unwise for you to return to work or if you feel you are not up to it, then the next solution to your problem would be to discuss the matter of clubs and different community organizations with your minister. He can tell you what organizations would fit your interests best and where you could meet congenial people. You cannot be happy if you are sitting at home alone, feeling lonely and sorry for yourself. You must get out and do something. After an operation, you need rest and quiet. But when the recuperation goes on for four years, it is likely to break your spirits and lower your morale.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

Two Lengths in Formals Will Be Seen at State Ball

By NONA DAMASKE

Last week I told you of clothes suitable for the opening of the Legislature next Tuesday afternoon and the reception to follow.

This week I'm following up with gowns for a very gala occasion—the State Ball.

The short formal has reached the top and is now able to accompany white tie and tails to the most formal function. And while many women attending the ball will choose the full-length gown, the demi-length is quite correct provided the dress is formal enough.

Suddenly I've discovered the rich, elegant dress is also all-important. . . satins, laces and chiffons that float and drift dreamily to the strains of the beloved waltzes.

In the last week I've looked at many gowns but I think the one which impressed me most was a New York import. Gleaming duchess satin in ice blue with yards and yards of skirt and a bodice moulded to the body in soft folds and caught at the waist in a huge bow.

A short formal in white nylon also caught my eye. This was a Canadian-made dress and quite inexpensive. Grecian draped top, full skirt falling in soft folds and a soft gold kid belt studded with rhinestones.

Mary Black of London has designed a selection of gowns which is suited to the more mature woman, and I saw two which were lovely. One in a little larger size was pure silk chiffon in a rich shade of olive green. The bodice had all-over lattice beading in bronze tone with tiny iridescent sequins.

A distinct contrast in color was the silk jersey by Mary Black in a shade called burnt sienna. The scoop neckline was outlined with a floral design done in bugle beads and sequins. The jersey was draped in fine folds around the body from just under the bustline to the hipline.

For the mature woman who wears a larger size and likes a jacket to slip on for less formal occasions I was shown a gracious dress in black. Delicate chantilly lace over net and over taffeta. The dress was strapless but had a short bolero with long sleeves.

Whether it be long or demi-length, silk or satin, your grandest dress is not too grand for the State Ball. White kid gloves are worn of course, and these too can be long or very short. Elsie wears the full 16-button length and Doris wears wrist-length. Both pair of gloves were made in France and are washable kid.

Pretty shoes are a must with the shorter formal and Doris shows us a pair of dainty brogue patent sling-heel pumps. I also saw silver and gold kid sandals with narrow string straps.

This is a wonderful time to wear your precious jewels, but if you are not fortunate enough to possess real diamonds and pearls, there are many fine pieces being made by well-known jewelry designers which I am sure you would be proud to wear.

Nonas' Feet. New saucy slippers aptly named "Confetti." The very minimum of shoe but the very maximum of style for late day. The pair shown are green kid sprinkled with every color imaginable. The highest of very slender heels make this shoe a real foot flatterer. A must with the very open shoe are "Bare-foot" hose imported from New York. They have absolutely no foot reinforcement and come in a wonderful shade called "Bareleg."

CLUB WOMEN'S NEWS

India Discussed—At meeting of the Women's Missionary Society, Fairfield United Church, Mrs. B. Wellwood spoke of the different religions of India and their beliefs, and Mrs. J. Saunders gave the history of the Christian church in India from early days. Mrs. R. N. Tannahill's group was in charge of the program and Mrs. F. Hunter gave the devotional. President, Mrs. E. McGinnis was in the chair. Refreshments were served.

New Officers—At the meeting of the Chairman's Club, new officers were elected as follows: President, Ena McCabe; vice-president, Bob Hogarth; secretary, Ed Cridge; treasurer, Donna Whiting; attendance committee, George Jessup and Ed Cridge. Retiring president, Jim Maloney, and secretary, Lily Jebson were thanked for their year's work. Bob Hogarth, speaker of the evening, gave a talk on "Red Cross Blood Bank and Transfusion Service," and emphasized the importance of supporting this great humanitarian project.

The 33rd Annual Dinner of the Burns Club of Victoria B.C. will be held in St. John's Church Hall (Entrance Balmoral Street) Tuesday, Jan. 25, 1955 at 7 p.m. Sharp. Dress Optional. Tickets $2.50. Mr. Harry L. Smith, Principal Victoria High School, will give the address to the Immortal Memory. Guest Soloists: Miss Grace Adams, Mrs. M. Christison and Mr. Stanley Martin.

Elsie Edwards, right, is the epitome of elegance in an oyster white georgette gown, designed by Rolande of London. The long torso of this full-skirted gown is encrusted with opalescent sequins which are sewn on to form daisy-like flowers and delicate leaves. A lovely short formal imported from New York is worn by Doris Usher. The delicate pattern of the mink-toned chantilly lace over pink taffeta is highlighted by a scattering of rhinestones. This dress has the new high-bosom Empire line which Doris wears to perfection.

St. Joseph's Receives $3,100 From Auxiliary

On behalf of the members of St. Joseph's Hospital Women's Auxiliary, president Mrs. A. Johnsen presented a cheque for $3,100 to Sister Superior Mary Angelus at a well-attended meeting, Friday afternoon.

Sister Superior thanked the auxiliary on behalf of the hospital for their keen interest in the welfare of the institution.

The money will be used for the purchase of a blood bank, oxygen tent and ice-making machine. Some 35 members were taken on a tour of the hospital, during which time they saw the above-mentioned machines in operation and had their value explained by Dr. D. B. Roxburgh and L. P. Walton. Following the tour members enjoyed tea served by Sister Mary Druclia, director of the auxiliary. Several new members were welcomed.

WHY GROW OLD?

BY JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Some Marathon Readers Already Taking in Seams

One day each week during the eight weeks Marathon I will discuss some of the questions which Marathon entrants are sending in. Many women are now in the third week of Marathon. Because of the huge mail, some of you had a delay in receiving your directions.

However, if you are in the third week you are over the biggest hump. If you have not yet arrived at the third week, be sure to stay in there until you do. By now you have lost quite a few pounds and are already beginning to take the seams in. Once you are the happy recipient of those lovely signs you are almost sure to continue. Also, you do not feel hollow as you may have when you first began counting calories.

I have had a few letters asking what to do because the writers have not lost any weight yet. If you have counted calories very faithfully, not kidding yourself at all, and have lost no pounds after three weeks, then you should see a physician and have a metabolism test. It may be that you are one of those rare individuals who need medication along with your diet and exercise. However, many women follow the diet except in a "few instances," but fail to realize what a great difference in calorie count these occasions make.

Other women ask me how long it will be before all soreness (due to exercise) disappears. They say that they were free from it and then all of a sudden they "became sore in some one place." This is natural. The general soreness should be gone after two weeks or sooner but, every once in a while, when an exercise uses a new muscle or uses it in a new way, one muscle or group of muscles may become tender temporarily.

Be sure to use the Self-Analysis part of the booklet so that you can be certain that you are shooting towards the correct goals.

If you missed joining the Marathon and would like to start now with the new Marathon Booklet, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Closely Timed Schedule Important Next Tuesday

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Feminine Victoria is thrilling to the thought of afternoon dresses, the spring chapeaux and the evening gowns that will be worn next Tuesday for the opening of the Legislature and for the State Ball. Parliament Buildings officials are making sure seating arrangements are adequate for distinguished guests on the floor of the House and that the great golden Mace that must be carried ahead of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor when he enters the House, is shining and ready. And at Government House, where split second timing must be adhered to throughout next Tuesday if the over-all program is to proceed in a smooth and efficient way, a controlled note of excitement is mounting to a climax.

In the secretary's office, where Lieut.-Cmdr. Gar Dixon is now the voice of authority (Capt. J. G. Cromack retired at the end of the year), plans for next Tuesday were made and approved weeks ago. They were typed and the long pages were clipped into folders so they would not be forgotten or mislaid.

These plans have been referred to many times already, but next Tuesday they will be in even greater demand as various members of the household staff check to make sure of the parts they must play.

Early Tuesday morning great tubs of flowers will be brought in from the Government House greenhouses and the housekeeper with a corps of assistants will start to arrange the floral displays for the evening.

Mrs. Clarence Wallace, gracious chataleine at Government House, will keep a watchful eye on the flower arranging and will give a few suggestions here and there, for she is noted for her love of flowers.

Table Set Early for State Dinner

In the early morning, too, the beautiful dinner service, reserved for state occasions, with delicate glass and crystal and fine old silver, will be brought from storage cupboards and the long table in the state dining room will be set for the dinner.

Extra staff will begin to arrive... selected from a list of names always kept on hand in the secretary's office. There will be extra chairs and tables arriving, too, for the buffet supper that will be served at midnight during the ball.

As Tuesday morning proceeds, footsteps will fly faster and there will be an excited murmur of voices as members of the staff flick the last bit of dust from the scarlet and gold ball-room and the dignified white and silver drawing room. There will be murmurs from the kitchens, too, where foods to be served at the dinner and the supper are sampled and appraised.

Upstairs in the dressing rooms His Honor's valet will have laid out the dark blue and gold civil uniform with white plumed hat and sword that he will wear to the opening of the Legislature. Mrs. Wallace's personal maid will have checked every detail of the ensemble she will wear for the afternoon and also for the evening.

Now the tempo begins to really speed up. Promptly at 2:30 p.m. (according to the typewritten plan in Lieut.-Cmdr. Dixon's office) the aides-de-camp will arrive at Government House. This year, the Lieutenant-Governor has chosen his Vancouver aides to accompany him to the opening of the House.

There will be Cmdr. Glen McDonald, RCN (R); Brig. W. G. Roaf, OBE, ED; Wing Cmdr. E. A. Alexander, AFC, and Supt. G. J. Archer, RCMP. Cmdr. Hew Paterson, RCN (R) Ltd., will accompany Mrs. Wallace.

Mrs. Wallace First to Leave for Opening

At 2:30 p.m. a motorcycle escort of city police will arrive at Government House and at the same time Mrs. Wallace will leave for the Parliament Buildings, accompanied by Miss Ruth MacLean and attended by Cmdr. Paterson.

The timing calls for Mrs. Wallace to arrive at the Parliament Buildings at 2:35 p.m., where she is met by the Deputy Provincial Secretary, Capt. R. A. Pennington, and escorted to reserved seats on the floor of the House.

At 2:40 p.m., preceded by the motorcycle escort, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will leave Government House for the Parliament Buildings, accompanied by his aides and his secretary. Time of arrival at the Parliament Buildings is set for 2:45 p.m., and in the next 14 minutes His Honor must receive the Royal Salute, inspect the guard of honor, meet the two aides of the Premier, Deputy Provincial Secretary R. A. Pennington and Mr. R. B. Worley at the top of the steps leading to the rotunda of the Parliament Buildings, and with his party proceed to the Executive Chamber.

At 3 o'clock, preceded by navy, army, air force and Royal Canadian Mounted Police aides and his secretary carrying the Speech from the Throne tied with a wide scarlet ribbon, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will enter the Legislative Chamber.

Holker Loses Court Action On Lease Breach

Civil action of Louis Holker, 2533 Killarney, entered against three parties for breach of lease and contract, was dismissed by Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane in Supreme Court Friday.

Mr. Holker asked for damages amounting to $4,597 from the defendants, Ash Temple Ltd., Thomas C. Moulds, employee of the company, and Garnet Montgomery, of Qualicum, dentist.

The plaintiff alleged that the dental supply firm agreed to pay him for alterations to a dwelling for a dentist office and to lease the premises. They failed to carry out their contract, he claimed.

Mr. Justice Macfarlane ruled, however, that Mr. Holker failed to prove any liability on the part of the defendants and dismissed the case.

Jack Rutan was acting as counsel for Mr. Montgomery, while Ronald Grant was representing the company and Mr. Moulds.

Million German Coal Workers Stage Strike

ESSEN, West Germany (AP)—Ignoring government censure, nearly 1,000,000 West German coal and steel workers began a 24-hour strike today in protest against what they labelled anti-labor statements by a Ruhr industrialist.

The walkout, one of the biggest to hit Germany since the Second World War, reached 132 coal mines and 35 big steel works up and down the industrial Ruhr. Loss in coal production alone was estimated at 430,000 tons, and over-all loss in production was expected to approach $8,000,000.

The strikers left the pits with the open support of the opposition, anti-rearmament Socialist party, second largest in West Germany.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government officially deplored the strike, declaring it would play into the hands of the Communists and only benefit "those forces hoping to destroy the democratic order."

The immediate cause of the walkout was a statement by Hermann Reusch, managing director of the big Oberhausen steel works. Newspapers quoted Reusch as saying trade unions "brutally blackmailed" the West German parliament into passing the co-determination law of 1951 which gives labor a voice in management.

Commons to Hear Duplessis' Tax Reply on Tuesday

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec's Premier Duplessis Friday characterized recent federal moves in the Ottawa-Quebec tax dispute as steps on the road to justice and reiterated the government's desire to reach a tax agreement "to guarantee national unity."

He said his reply to Prime Minister St. Laurent's tax exemption proposal will be tabled in the Commons and the Quebec legislature Tuesday.

FOUR CARS ADRIFT

100 Fishermen Rescued From Drifting Ice Floe

JACKSON'S POINT, Ont. (BUP)—A giant ice floe bearing four abandoned automobiles floated menacingly in Lake Simcoe today and at least 100 fishermen could thank their "lucky stars" they weren't on it.

Milder weather continued to reduce the size of the floe and provincial police feared the cars would sink unless gentle winds blew the massive shape ashore.

A six-hour operation got the fishermen safely ashore Friday night after "a crack like thunder" created a huge crevice in the ice and cast them adrift.

The crack opened at 10 a.m. Friday west of Land's End and spread 10 to 15 miles to the government docks at Jackson's Point and the north end of Georgian Island.

Boatbuilder Bill Sellers, who said the day was "one for the book" despite his 20 years on the lake, got a small craft into the 50-foot stretch of water between shore and floe a few minutes after the break occurred and started rescue operations.

Many of the men managed to throw planks across the gap and scramble to safety before the fissure widened, the others were taken off by Sellers and

Stewart Retires As Umpire

CINCINNATI (UP)—Bill Stewart, who has been a National League umpire for 22 years, retired today and was replaced by Stan Landes, recently promoted from the American Association.

President Warren Giles, in announcing that Stewart had decided to end his career under the National League's umpire retirement and pension plan, said "Bill is a credit to the umpiring profession."

Giles said that Stewart had wanted to continue with the National League as supervisor of umpires, and "probably would have been a logical choice, in view of his seniority, had such a post been planned."

"We have decided definitely not to re-establish the position of umpire supervisor which has been vacant since the last supervisor, Bill Klem, became inactive in 1949," Giles said.

Stewart, who was the dean of the current group of National League arbitrators, is 60 years old. He makes his home in Jamaica Plain, Mass.

Stewart, in addition to his career in baseball, was a professional hockey player and also served as coach of the Chicago Black Hawks before he became a hockey referee.

Leg Surgery Scheduled for Mountain Victim

Charles E. Faulkner Jr. of 936 Fullerton, is scheduled to undergo surgery soon to set a leg fractured in a nightmarish accident on the upper levels of Mt. Arrowsmith more than two months ago.

Faulkner, a 22-year-old mountain climber, broke the leg in a fall near the summit of the 6,000-foot mountain on Nov. 7. A 50-man rescue party brought him out to Alberni after he spent more than two days hanging on the edge of a precipice. His mother said today the leg wound "has been very stubborn to heal" and doctors have been unable to set the fracture.

Bone will have to be grafted on the leg, she said.

"They are going to operate any day now," said Mrs. Faulkner.

Faulkner slid down an ice slope, and his broken leg was credited with saving him from falling over the edge of a 250-foot cliff. Bitterly cold weather and snow hampered rescue operations.

Ike to Outline Plan For Formosa Defense

President to Present Congress With Formosa Intentions Monday, Asking Full Approval

WASHINGTON (UP)—The White House announced today that President Eisenhower will send Congress a message Monday making clear U.S. defense intentions in the Far East and asking House and Senate approval.

Official sources said previously that the president will draw a defense line in the western Pacific and ask authority to use U.S. air and sea power to defend it if Red China tries to step over.

A tentative draft of the administration's proposed resolution was shown today to key members of Congress. One highly-placed source said the proposed U.S. defense zone would include only Formosa and the Pescadores. Islands and would not embrace such other Nationalist-held islands as Quemoy and Matsu, which are much closer to the Chinese mainland.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty announced the President's intentions today.

"The President will submit a special message to Congress on Monday. The message will clarify the President's intentions."

WOMEN THE STRONGER WEEKEND WRITER FINDS

"Biologically the female is demonstrably the stronger organism," says Dr. Ashley Montagu, anthropology professor at Rutgers University, New Brunswick. And that sets off a really lively debate on the question: "Women are the stronger sex" in Weekend Magazine in this issue. PLANS NOW FIRM

Pat Bay Repair Plant Assured

Fairley Aviation Company of Canada Ltd. has definitely decided to go ahead with establishment of an aircraft repair unit at Patricia Bay airport which may ultimately develop into a major aircraft plant, the Times learned today.

Negotiations for purchase of a hangar at the airport to serve as the plant have now been completed and the company will take over Feb. 1.

Plans are to start on a small scale and expand later, as the company did in Dartmouth, Nova Scotia.

There it began as a small repair unit and now employs more than 1,000 men. Only Friday the company announced that it is gearing the Dartmouth plant to produce guided missiles.

The Fairley company is a branch of the British firm of the same name, which is already manufacturing guided missiles.

An official announcement of the Patricia Bay plans is expected next week.

Dr. F. T. Fairley, M.P., for Victoria (whose similar name is only a coincidence) has been working closely with the company officials in plans for the Patricia Bay plant.

U.S. CARRIER FORCE HEADED FOR FORMOSA

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—A United States Navy fast carrier task force left Manila Bay early today and was reported—but not confirmed officially—headed toward the troubled Formosan waters which have swirled all week with air and sea action.

China's biggest amphibious invasion of the long Civil War, least 70 years. Victoria is much more a rest home than a city. It is the meeting-place of the retired from all over the Empire.

And that is why one feels, in Victoria, as if one was living in another country, a country much closer to London than to Ottawa. British affairs seem to attract just as much attention as do Canadian. Moreover, that frame of mind is common to all of Columbia. With reason the label "British" is coupled with it; it is more so than all the rest of Canada, probably as British as Lancashire or Durham. Not only the chain of the Rocky Mountains separates Columbia from the rest of Canada. The barrier of history is higher than the mountains' crest. Seen from Victoria or Vancouver the rest of Canada seems a far-off land, an immense flat country such as one readily imagines the Russian plain or the Steppes of Siberia. Undoubtedly there are many Canadians living in Columbia, but the foundation of the population is British; the air you breathe carries the label "Made in England," just as do the tweeds everyone wears and the little English cars everyone drives. Even the Canadians, the real Canadians who live in Columbia, are not Canadians like the others; they are Canadians in the British manner, with a slight Oxford accent.

From a Victoria viewpoint, the Province of Quebec appears to be a very strange phenomenon: a little island of French culture pounded by the waves of an Anglo-Saxon ocean. Something like the Island of Sand. There is no prejudice, in Victoria, against the Province of Quebec as the centre of French culture. For that little island is not a presence, merely a point on a map.

As soon as you tackle the question of politics you feel a nervousness, amounting almost to irritation. Besides, you do not tackle the question; you are asked quite bluntly after two words of introduction. Why does the Province of Quebec refuse to sign the fiscal agreements with Ottawa? How do the people of Quebec manage to live under the dictatorship of Duplessis?

And so, one must launch into long explanations: The British North America Act provides for the provinces' imposition of direct taxes for provincial purposes. Who can accuse a province of blocking progress for exercising its constitutional privileges? Quebec asks no favors; all it means to do is to make good its constitutional rights to raise its own taxes up to the amount which

6 Die in Two Plane Crashes On Prairies

One Established As RCAF Trainer

EDMONTON (CP)—A twin-engine RCAF plane crashed today about 25 miles southwest of Edmonton. An RCAF search and rescue spokesman said three persons were killed.

WINNIPEG (CP)—An RCAF twin-engine Expediter training plane crashed in southern Manitoba early today—killing the three crew members aboard.

The pilot was identified as a member of the RCAF but it was not known if the other pair, both navigator trainees, were NATO students or members of the RCAF.

A resident of Carman, Man.—W. B. Mitchell—saw the crash about 4½ miles south of Sanford while he was returning home from work.

Mitchell phoned suburban Fort Garry RCMP early today and told them of the crash-up. They in turn told Station Winnipeg.

The plane left Winnipeg at 7:30 Friday on a routine five-hour training flight. It is thought they were returning to their base when the crash occurred 20 miles short of their destination.

Names of the men are being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

TO VISIT CANADA—Clement Atlee, former prime minister of Britain and leader of the Labor party, will visit Canada from April 11 to May 1 to fill a number of speaking engagements, under the sponsorship of the CCF party.

New Air Service Gives Vancouver $60 Million Yearly

VANCOUVER (BUP)—A heavy flow of diplomatic and tourist traffic on the new trans-Pacific route of the Canadian Pacific Airlines is expected here.

The new link between the west coast and Amsterdam was hailed as Vancouver's "Coming of age" in aviation. Business sources predicted the service would lead to the expenditure of $60,000,000 a year here. (See story, Page 3.)

Guns Boom at 3 P.M. Tuesday; Wallace Opens House Last Time

Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace will open the B.C. Legislature Tuesday for the last time.

The Queen's representative in B.C. retires this fall and the 19-gun artillery salute thundering across the Inner Harbor Tuesday will be the last executed in his honor at a House opening.

Although the opening is traditionally "Victoria's show," the Lieutenant-Governor will be accompanied by his four Vancouver aides de camp, who have not attended an opening during his term of office.

A Calgary-based band of the PPCLI will play God Save the Queen as the black limousine carrying the Lieutenant-Governor glides up the driveway fronting the legislative buildings.

Troops garrisoned at Work Point Barracks, under command of Maj. R. A. McAlpine of the 4th Light Anti-Aircraft Battery will stand the 100-man guard of honor.

The House will formally be opened at 3 p.m., when His Honor reads the Speech from the Throne. The speech will deal with the government's major sessional legislation.

After the reading of the Throne Speech, the Lieutenant-Governor will retire and Premier Bennett will adjourn the House until Wednesday, when B.C.'s elected representatives get down to business in earnest.

House standings are unchanged for this, the third session of B.C.'s 24th Legislature. The Social Credit government has 27 members and the CCF opposition 14. There are five Liberals and two Independents.

Lion's Gate Purchase Strengthens Victoria Claim for B.C. Help

A new move to get provincial government aid in building a new Point Ellice Bridge was forecast today following government purchase of the Lions Gate span at Vancouver.

City council acting finance chairman, Ald. Brent Murdoch said the question will be brought before council.

Through the deal announced Friday by Premier Bennett the general taxpayers of British Columbia will help subsidize the purchase of the Lions Gate toll bridge so that eventually it will be a toll-free bridge.

While the Point Ellice span is not a toll bridge, the principal of assistance from the general provincial treasury is the same, it is argued.

Under regulation of the Toll Highway and Bridges Authority, (1933), the government is empowered to subsidize the bridge purchase by half the cost. It pays 2½ per cent of the capital indebtedness each year. Bridge operation pays the other 2½ per cent of the annual mortgage reduction, (usually 5 per cent of the whole) annually.

This means Victorians, and all other B.C. taxpayers are helping to buy the bridge.

Ald. Murdoch estimated that a new Point Ellice Bridge would cost roughly $400,000. City has $191,000 saved as a bridge fund from land sales.

FUND STARTED
"If we can get the provincial government to help, so much the better," said Alderman Murdoch.

"If it (the proposition) is put on a good, sound financial basis, the provincial government should be approached."

The matter will come up in council after examination by both finance and public works committees.

Ald. Geoff. Edgewood, also a member of the finance committee, said the Lions Gate bridge purchase "... leaves us room for new hope. If they are going into the bridge business, there is no reason why they shouldn't help us."

He added that Victoria is in a good bargaining position because it can put up almost half the cost of the bridge at the start.

There is another parallel between the Lions Gate and Point Ellice bridges.

Both cross harbor waters and both connect separate municipalities. Even though Point Ellice bridge is built entirely on city land, it is a vital link with Esquimalt.

20,000 FLEE FLOOD WATERS IN FRANCE

PARIS (UP)—The Seine River rose today toward its highest point in 31 years, forcing an estimated 20,000 persons, including families of U.S. servicemen, out of their homes around Paris.

U.S. soldiers and airmen joined in emergency efforts to bolster dikes and rescue marooned families. The servicemen waded the flood waters up to their chests and towed stranded persons to safety on air force rubber rafts.

Weather Hits U.K. Soccer For 2nd Week

LONDON (Reuters)—For the second week in a row the weather played havoc with the British Saturday soccer program.

Of 62 games scheduled today, 27 were postponed.

Last Saturday snowstorms and ice-coated playing fields forced postponement of 41 games.

But a thaw was to blame for today's chaos. Melting snow left many soccer pitches looking like small lakes.

Sixteen games in England were postponed, 10 were called off in Scotland and one in Ireland.

Wolverhampton Wanderers, the league champions, swept back to the top of the First Division on goal average by beating Charlton, the leading don side, 2-1 after a scoreless first half.

They now have 34 points from 27 games, the same total as Sunderland, who dropped a home point by sharing four goals with Portsmouth.

Manchester United moved into third place with 31 points by drawing 1-1 at home with Bolton. (See scores page 3.)

Writer Says Our Cars Move Like Hearses, People Like Pallbearers

(Ed. Note—Following is the translation of an article by Gerard Filion, editor of Le Devoir, Montreal, based on his recent visit here as a Canadian Club speaker):

By GERARD FILION

Victoria is not the capital of a Canadian province; it is the metropolis of a Commonwealth country. At least, that is the first impression that you have when you arrive in that provincial town, the last refuge, it seems of the "Victorian" middle class. People have the serious expression, the slow step, the accent of the Old Country.

Nothing happens, you would think, in that city, which is nevertheless the capital of a fast-growing province. The advent of an ordinary journalist from Montreal arouses a surprising interest. He is intently pestered in an attempt to draw from him categorical statements on all the current problems. He makes the headlines in the newspapers and is the star of the radio. The thing is that, really, very little happens in that city of civil servants and retired residents. Just as in any large village, the slightest item of news takes on exaggerated proportions.

The striking feature of Victoria, over and above the beauty and the neatness of the city, is the calm of its citizens and their advanced ages. No one is in a hurry; the cars move like hearses and the people walk like pallbearers. The average age of the inhabitants must be at least 70 years. Victoria is much more a rest home than a city. It is the meeting-place of the retired from all over the Empire.

And that is why one feels, in Victoria, as if one was living in another country, a country much closer to London than to Ottawa. British affairs seem to attract just as much attention as do Canadian. Moreover, that frame of mind is common to all of Columbia. With reason the label "British" is coupled with it; it is more so than all the rest of Canada, probably as British as Lancashire or Durham. Not only the chain of the Rocky Mountains separates Columbia from the rest of Canada. The barrier of history is higher than the mountains' crest. Seen from Victoria or Vancouver the rest of Canada seems a far-off land, an immense flat country such as one readily imagines the Russian plain or the Steppes of Siberia. Undoubtedly there are many Canadians living in Columbia, but the foundation of the population is British; the air you breathe carries the label "Made in England," just as do the tweeds everyone wears and the little English cars everyone drives. Quebec asks no favors; all it means to do is to make good its constitutional rights to raise its own taxes up to the amount which the fiscal agreements would bring it. If the other provinces want to go back to the feeding bottle that is their business.

I remember making a trivial comparison between the plump, well-cared-for capon and the farmyard cock: Nine provinces have complacently let themselves be fattened; Quebec finds a greater satisfaction in leading its own cock's life. It is a question of temperament.

I do not imagine such arguments are likely to convince many people.

"We have no objection to your French way-of-life," a kindly grandmother from Victoria confided to me. "We object to your Catholicism. So long as you are led by the cures it will be impossible to get along with you." That rather blunt though sincere confession seems to me to express the essential feature of the attitude of a great number of Anglo-Protestants. Several would be ready, I think, to give "freedom of the city" to French culture throughout Canada on the condition that that culture be lay and free-thinking. But a French civilization which remains genuinely Catholic cannot be accepted. Did I not read, in a weekly newspaper published at Red Deer that one of the reasons for which the City of Quebec had delayed so long before erecting a monu-

Dick Going Ahead With Suit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Burly Harry Dick, Vancouver Canucks' defenseman, said today he is going ahead with his threatened suit against Kenny MacKenzie, the co-owner of the New Westminster Royals.

The teams are cross-town rivals in the Western Hockey League.

"I have been called a lot of things," Dick said in a statement to reporters, "but never a coward."

Manitoba Trucks to Wear Mudguards

WINNIPEG (CP) — Attorney-General Ivan Schultz said today he is issuing an order to Manitoba RCMP and Winnipeg police to start enforcing the section of the highway traffic act requiring trucks to have mudguards on rear wheels.

Mr. Schultz said Friday this was the section that the police forces were ordered not to enforce in a letter from the attorney-general's department in June, 1952.

Sin to Prolong Life, Says Reeve

PORT STANLEY, Ont. (BUP) — An Ontario woman reeve said today it was a sin to prolong the life of a doomed person.

Mrs. Violet McCarthy said she didn't believe in killing but she "absolutely abhors suffering."

The reeve, who is the only woman member of Elgin County Council, first made her protest over prolonged suffering during a discussion Friday of heavy indigent hospital costs.

She said today that her views are "a mild form of euthanasia or mercy killing."

Mayor Hume Reported Recovering

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Fred Hume was reported here today to be recovering from a skin condition and nervous tensions at Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. In a telegram, Mrs. Hume said her husband attributed his condition to an overload of civic duties.

Lairing Hits SC Forest Policies

CLOVERDALE, B.C. (CP) — Power and forest policies of the Social Credit government were criticized by Liberal leader Arthur Lairing at a Liberal rally here.

Mr. Lairing said he would continue to fight the government's forest policy "which allows five timber outfits to run our forests."

"We are mortgaging our future and that of our children when we give our forest resources to private firms in perpetuity," he said.
